Fighting 150 Planes

MacArthur Smashes Another Jap Attack

TWO-PRONGED BATAN DRIVE HURLED BACK

Enemy Uses Best Troops But Suffers Heavy Losses In Latest Onslaught.

Big Guns of Fortress Blast Japs Concentrating For Surprise Attack.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — General Douglas MacArthur reported today that the defenders of the Batan peninsula in the Philippines had repulsed with heavy enemy losses the latest series of Japanese attacks, which were made by the foe's best troops who employed new tactics.

A war department communique reporting developments of the past 24 hours and also summarizing savage fighting of the past several days said that two Japanese divisions were hurled simultaneously against American-Filipino lines.

On the west coast, the South China sea shore, the invaders were forced back to the coast, and either destroyed, captured or drowned, the communique said.

On the east side of the peninsula, facing Manila bay, a frontal mass attack was smashed by artillery fire before it got well under way.

The communique made clear however that the Japanese had fought their way in the last three weeks about half way down the peninsula.

The fighting on the west coast took place in the area of Pilar, the war department said, and this point near an important road junction is only 17 miles from the end of the peninsula opposite the Corregidor fortress.

General MacArthur said the Batan west coast attack was made by picked groups known as Tatori who made simultaneous attacks at several points. He paid tribute to their courage in a report which the communique thus quoted:

"All enemy thrusts on the west coast have now been completely

Quisling to Negotiate Peace Pact With Axis

He's Given Title of Prime Minister By Hitler.

(By International News Service)

STOCKHOLM — Vidkun Quisling's first important policy as prime minister of the puppet government established in Norway will be the establishment of a legation at Berlin and negotiation of a "peace treaty" with Germany, the "master state" reports reaching Stockholm said today.

Then efforts will be made to establish diplomatic relations with other countries, beginning with the Axis nations and the countries under Axis domination.

Following ceremonies Sunday in Oslo which saw Quisling finally elevated to the post of head of the Norwegian government, he signed an agreement with Germany for an end of the technical state of war between the countries.

When details of the peace terms are settled, it will only remain for the Quisling government to make them effective within rebellious Norway.

Sweden's opinion of the Quisling government was not changed by the performance yesterday at Oslo, press reaction indicated Said the Svenska Dagbladet:

"The Swedish people cannot change their opinion of the systematic violation of the rights of humanity going on in Norway. The political thoughts of Quislings and Swedes belong to different worlds."

Adolf Hitler ceremoniously bestowed the title of "prime minister" on Quisling through Reich Commissar Josef Terboven and declared:

"The Norwegian people, unified and strengthened by national socialists (the Nazi party), will become an indispensable part of the German community of nations."

come a by-word for treachery, replied:

"Norway's national interests will coincide in all respects with those of Germany."

The ceremonies were carried out in Oslo's castle-fortress of Akershus, in the presence of Quisling followers and under guard of German occupational forces. Against this background Quisling and Terboven were reported to have signed the "peace treaty" terminating the technical state of Eight Others Die on Ohio Highways Made Slippery By Five-Inch Snow.

NONE INJURED HERE

City, County Escape Listing In Death or Injured List First Time In Months.

Slippery roads and streets resulting from a five-inch snowfall, heaviest of the winter, were blamed today for the death of an aged Ashland woman in a bus-automobile crash at the edge of Ashland and scores of other traffic mishaps in Ohio which had at least nine traffic deaths over the week-end.

Mansfield and Richland county, however, escaped without a major accident and no one was reported injured. It was the first week-end in several months in which no one was injured in the city or county.

Victim of the Ashland crash was Mrs. Laura Henney, 75, who died Sunday morning in Samaritan hospital, Ashland, about nine hours after she suffered injuries in an automobile-bus collision on Lincoln Way west (U. S. Route 42) at the western edge of the city.

Injured seriously in the same mishap was Mrs. Edna McKinley, 38, Mrs. Henney's daughter, who received chest injuries. She is in Samaritan hospital. Blake McKinley, the injured woman's husband and driver of the car, escaped with minor bruises.

Police said the McKinley car skidded into a Greyhound bus which had been purposely steered toward a ditch to avoid collision with the car. McKinley told officers he attempted to stop when he saw another car overturned in the street. The McKinley car, however, skidded sideways on the icy paving.

Occupants of the bus, which was driven by Edgar E Snyder, Cleveland, were not injured.

Mrs. Henney's death was due to internal injuries, a fractured right arm, and shock. The body was taken to the Denbow-Bear Funeral home in Ashland where services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday. Rev. W. M. Dessen-

Expect Further Drive on Japs' Pacific Isles

U. S. Fleet Uses Surprise Tactics In Fierce Smash At Six Bases In Marshall And Gilbert Islands; Report Heavy Enemy Losses.

(By Associated Press)

A slashing sea and air attack by the United States on the mid-Pacific flank of Japan's broad hop-skip-jump offensive raised today the probability of a full-fledged American offensive in the enemy's vulnerable island mandates timed to ease the siege of Singapore and check the pressure on the Dutch East Indies and Australia.

Warships and planes of the Pacific fleet, according to a Washington announcement, have turned a storm of torpedoes, bombs and shells onto six Japanese air and naval bases in the Marshall and Gilbert islands in a surprise foray that destroyed or damaged many auxiliary vessels of the enemy's fleet along with numerous planes and ground installations.

The announcement came yesterday, on the second day of the siege of Singapore and about the time that the Japanese, perhaps in their first feeler thrust into the moat-like Johore strait, sent three small boats against the British base-fortress. They were promptly caught in a gale of shellfire and one of them was sunk

Singapore's guns also blasted Japanese forces moving into Johore Bahru, across the strait from Singapore island

In London, a British military commentator said it was entirely possible that Singapore's big coast defense guns—up to 18 inches in caliber — had been turned on Japanese mainland concentrations.

It has been said frequently that the defenses were designed with the idea of repulsing attack only by sea, with the heaviest guns all fixedly pointed away from the mainland The London commentator emphasized that Singapore's defenses were predicated on the search for impregnability and so designers certainly would have taken into consideration the possibility of attack from the mainland.

How much the United States Pacific fleet must step up its flank attacks to ease the imminent threats to Singapore, Java and Australia was a major question in secret Pacific strategy but all signs were that the attempt was probable.

Council To Study 7 P. M. Gas Station Closing; Fight Looms

An ordinance calling for compulsory closing of all Mansfield gasoline service stations on a shortened work schedule -- one which sets 7 p m. as a daily closing hours and 1 p. m. for Sundays —will be submitted to city council at its February meeting tomorrow at 8 p. m in the municipal building.

A fight is foreseen over the ordinance because it is being sponsored by the Mansfield Gasoline Retailers association in what is said to be an effort to force company-owned stations to observe a shortened schedule set up three weeks ago by the association.

Operators of about 90 per cent of the stations in the city belong to the association, its officials claim. This group is made up of independent dealers or dealers who lease their stations from national companies. The other ten per cent is composed of three Standard Oil company units and about ten other stations, some owned independently.

The independents, who have been observing the shorter work day for three weeks, claim that the shorter schedule is needed to conserve gasoline and to save tires, power and other supplies.

STAGE RUSH

Scores Buy Use Tax Stamps Required on Cars Today.

Scores of Mansfield and Richland county motorists dashed to the Mansfield postoffice and to the Richland County Auto club this morning to avoid a jail sentence and $25 fine.

They were caught short Saturday when the Auto club and the postoffice closed at noon, before they could buy the $2.09 federal use stamp required on their cars beginning today.

Postal officials said that a line of motorists had been at the use-tax stamp window since the building opened for business.

Postoffices at Bellville and at Lucas ran out of use-tax stamps and had to send to the Mansfield postoffice for additional sheets Stamps purchased now are good until June 30, when an annual stamp costing $5 must be obtained.

Courthouse Bell Sold For Defense, Brings $120 Price

The half-ton bell that sounded the opening of court in Richland county 50 years ago is going to have a part in the nation's defense program.

County commissioners sold the old bell today to a Mansfield junk dealer for 12 cents a pound which is expected to total approximately $120.

Made of steel, tin, and other metals in demand now, the bell can easily be melted down to supply materials for planes and armaments. There is even a little silver in the bell to give it a musical tone.

The huge bell, measuring 30 by 40 inches, has been stored in the courthouse attic since the early 1900's and workers were faced with a big task in getting it down to street level. They planned to crate it in heavy wood slats so it can be slid onto the elevator and lowered to the basement.

Said to be more than 70 years old, the bell was used for a number of years to call attorneys to the common pleas courtroom for the opening of trial. It was sounded a few minutes before time for the trials to begin and again as they got under way.

Knox Charges Workers Block Plan For 24-Hour War Output

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Secretary of the Navy Knox has told congress that the navy is having difficulty in getting 24-hour production for its tremendously expanded armaments program because manufacturers can induce only about 10 per cent of their employes to work in the early morning "dog watch" shifts.

Discussing the navy's general policies, Knox said that the military situation with respect to both oceans was "critical."

In testimony made public today on the $26,485,265,474 naval supply bill, Knox declared that the greatest bottleneck faced in the production program was in turning out aircraft engines. The navy would boost its production to 18,000 planes yearly with funds provided in the measure.

"We are apparently getting the capacity for the bodies of planes faster than we can get the engines with which to equip them and we have got to expand tremendously our engine production to keep up with this enlarged program," he testified.

The secretary said the navy was having "a great deal of difficulty in finding competent men to keep the machines busy He said that, roughly speaking, about 60 per cent of the men employed by any one factory worked the day shift, up until about 3 or 4 o'clock in the afternoon. Thirty per cent worked from then until midnight, but only about 10 per cent of the total number of employes was at the machines from midnight until the day shift came on again.

"There is great difficulty in getting men to work on that third shift and we are racking our brains for methods and possible plans under which we can enlarge the second and third shifts so as to make for a 24-hour use of all machine tools and facilities," he said.

SET NEXT CHAT

FDR To Address Nation on Evening of Feb. 23.

WASHINGTON— (UP) —President Roosevelt's "fireside" report on the progress of the war will be made on the evening of Feb. 23.

Chairman Edward J. Flynn of the Democratic National Committee, revealed the exact date of the president's talk last night in announcing plans for nation-wide "emergency" banquets to replenish the party's treasury.

The White House last week announced that Mr. Roosevelt would make a report to the nation "around" George Washington's birthday.

Flynn said one or more banquets or other functions would be held in practically all states at which the president's radioed address will be heard.

BLOCKED: RAF Planes Halt Japs' March Toward Rangoon

(By United Press)

RANGOON—British planes sank "a large number" of Japanese barges and blasted hundreds of Japanese troops in a low level attack on Japanese forces attempting to cross the Salween river barrier northeast of Moulmein, it was reported today.

The attack was directed against Japanese forces attempting to follow up their occupation of Moulmein by driving across the Salween river in the opening phase of a march toward Rangoon.

It was reported here that a force of British Blenheim bombers carried out the attack with an escort of RAF fighters. The attack was made Sunday.

The attack was described as "a most successful" action.

The looping railroad line between Rangoon and Mandalay cuts eastward at one point to within 110 miles of the Japanese forces at Moulmein

The Japanese drive around the jagged coast of the Gulf of Martaban from Moulmein to Rangoon, probably will be aimed first at the railroad terminal just west of Abya, 93 miles west of Moulmein, and then fan out for simultaneous strikes at Rangoon and the Rangoon-Mandalay line.

By land, the Japanese were approximately 150 miles from Rangoon and 110 miles from the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad, the highway, leading northward to China. By air they were within 30 miles of this capital of Burma.

(Chinese newspapers clamored for a counter-offensive to protect the vital Burma road and military sources, quoted in London, said the Chinese were drawn up ready to thrust both at Thailand and Indo-China at a word from the allied command. Chinese forces also are in Burma.)

ADVANCE: Reds Press On But British Fall Back In Africa

(By Associated Press)

Unbroken Russian advances against the Germans on the major front and a continuing British retreat from the Germans and Italians on the secondary front tightened the score today in the European-African war.

The African successes of the Axis, however, were far short of offsetting the German misfortunes in Russia.

In sea warfare, the German high command reported the sinking of a destroyer off the Canadian coast, a corvette west of Gibraltar and an "armed ship" off Cirenaeca and another off Murmank—all apparently credited to U-boat action—and bomb hits on three merchantmen off the southeast coast of England.

The British imperial retreat in North Africa found the erstwhile attackers fighting a defensive engagement about 100 miles northeast of Bengasi.

The British Middle East command said that the Axis forces were pressing on east of Barce "in considerable strength." The announcement implied that Barce, 60 miles northeast of Bengasi, was lost, as reported by the Axis.

The British said that the Seventh Indian infantry brigade, having escaped entrapment in the Axis occupation and by-passing of Bengasi, had fought its way to bases in eastern Libya.

The Italian high command, aside from its optimistic reports on the Libyan campaign, reported that German planes had carried out new, severe raids on a British airdrome on Malta, British base in mid-Mediterranean, destroying numerous grounded planes.

Russian forces carrying on unceasing warfare against the Germans and their allies in the snows and cold of deep winter were re-

Mr. G. Sees Shadow In Snow, Dives Right Back In Burrow

Mr. Groundhog didn't bother with the government censorship of weather forecasts today. Rousing from a sound nap he shuffled through the snow that almost blocked his burrow, glimpsed his shadow, predicted six more weeks of winter, and went right back to bed.

Even with the sun shining, Br'er Groundhog could tell right away that it was still winter and outside in the cold was no place for a fellow who likes to sleep in the warmth of a den. He was right about the cold to.

The weatherman said it was six above zero this morning and only 10 above at noon. He predicted it will be colder tonight, probably about zero.

The heaviest snowfall of the winter—five inches—covered the ground. The snow fell Saturday night and Sunday and kept road and street workers busy with plows and cinder trucks. All the roads were open today in the

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON—The leading military lesson from this war seems to be that there is no leading lesson from this war.

It started out with much talk about a revolution in tactics, with all the emphasis thrown directly opposite from the World War One doctrine of the offensive in mass to an almost complete reliance on such "i m pregnable" defenses as the Maginot line.

Gen. Johnson.

The leading military nations, not excepting Germany, were spending a considerable proportion of available military money on the invention and development of shell-proof, bomb-proof, assault-proof fortifications.

In addition, Germany alone went far ahead in perfecting highly mobile, mechanized, armed and armored offensive formations. All the principal nations out-did themselves in experimentation and development of airpower as auxiliary — not as a main weapon.

But the emphasis on defensive strategy was not lengthened, even in Germany, which had her own answer to the Maginot line in her Siegfried line. It is now clear that none of the nations had properly appraised the offensive strength of modern airpower.

Military publicists and experts during those early months were still debating the greatly increased value of the defense as a contribution to victory. That is to say that they continued to debate it until the sudden and miraculous armored German thrust through the low-lands which isolated France from Britain, completely outflanked the Maginot line and left France helpless.

Immediately the tune changed. The Maginot line came to be regarded as one of the greatest follies of mankind. The apostles of the defensive were "thrust like foolish prophets forth."

War, we were told, had returned to pre-Napoleonic days of swift and sudden movement, and widespread strategical dispositions. No more should we see the wholesale slaughter to the point of exhaustion of masses of men thrown without protection against powerful defensive positions.

While there is no doubt of great changes made by armored and motorized troops, there is danger of jumping too quick and too far to final conclusions. It was never proved that the Maginot line was vulnerable to assault.

It was a great folly, but the folly was that it was entirely open on the northward flank. It merely channeled the German attack through the low countries.

Later developments promptly showed that the German swift offensive is not the whole story —especially by the holocaust of humanity in Russia where once again resistance through sheer weight of numbers is shown to be as successful as it ever was, if the circumstances are favorable.

In addition, in a small way at Wake Island and to a much greater and more significant extent in Batan, the value of the defensive based on powerful or impregnable positions has been again demonstrated.

I am aware that all this shows only one thing definitely. It is that the art of war is in one of the swiftest periods of flux and change in all its history.

The place of air-power on both land and sea is still an unplumbed depth. Even the shocking lesson of Pearl Harbor did little to clear that fog.

About the only lesson we can take is to be prepared in all kinds of warfare and to neglect none. That we seem to be doing as fast as is reasonable possible.

War Appropriations Rushed In Congress

DRAW UP PLAN FOR TRAINING OF AIR CADETS

Navy Co-operates With Four Colleges, Leases Their Ground Facilities.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Expressly determined to create the world's toughest force of airplane pilots, the navy whipped into final shape today a plan to turn out 30,000 air cadets a year with the co-operation of four universities whose facilities for ground training will be leased by the government.

At the same time a special committee assured congress that U. S. industry was equal to President Roosevelt's production goal of 185,000 airplanes in 1942 and 1943. It added that "before we are through" the nation's army air forces alone would number far in excess of 1,000,000 men.

The navy department's weekend announcement of its stepped up pilot-training program disclosed that it would establish one "Annapolis of the air" in the east, one in the west, one in the south and one in the middle east. The plan is to be in operation not later than May 1.

Facilities of the universities, which were not identified, will be rented for the duration of the war.

Each school will take in 625 candidates a month and for three months will prepare them for flight training by physical conditioning, military drill, courses in seamanship, naval history and customs, and training in communications, ordnance and other specialties.

Navy Secretary Knox said that those who survived all three training stages would be "the best pilots in the world."

The congressional committee, a subdivision of the house military committee, addressed itself primarily to military phases of aviation development in reporting on a survey of both continental and offshore bases, flying fields, training centers and aircraft plants.

The committee further suggested that eventually the United States should own the Atlantic bases leased from Great Britain for 99 years in the over-age destroyer deal.

Also in the field of aviation, the civil air patrol announced plans to take over routine army and navy flying jobs and release pilots of those services for active war duty. The patrol may undertake such assignments as towing aerial gunnery targets, courier flights, observation patrol in sparsely settled back country or uninhabited coastal areas, and ferrying military training and observation craft.

STRIKE AT SHIP YARDS IN WEST

Independent Union Requests Army and Navy Operate Picketed Plants.

(By International News Service)

SEATTLE, Wash.—The effect of an independent welders' strike at six Puget Sound shipyards was reduced by replacements today from AFL unions.

Meanwhile leaders of the 1200 striking members of the independent welders, cutters and helpers union renewed their plea for government intervention. In their latest wire to Washington they asked that the army and navy take over operation of the picketed plants in Seattle and Tacoma, all of which are busy on multi-million dollar defense shipbuilding contracts.

The week-end call climaxed the latest flare-up of an old jurisdictional dispute between the independent welders and AFL unions.

Assurance that additional AFL welders would be brought in came from Thomas Crowe, international representative of the AFL Boilermakers' union, who said telegrams and letters were pouring in from outlying ALF locals, offering the services of many of their welders.

The request for army and navy intervention, strike leaders said, was in response to a demand by the war production board that they "put loyalty to the nation and to our besieged soldiers in the Philippines above all else."

The walkout started Friday night at the huge Tacoma plant of the Seattle-Tacoma Shipbuilding corporation where almost all of its 1,180 independent welders laid down their torches, protesting the dismissal of nine fellow craftsmen who had failed to pay dues to the AFL boiler makers.

IF YOUR MONEY DOESN'T LAST LONG ENOUGH—HERE'S REASON

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The American people are spending money so fast these days that the currency is wearing out two months sooner than it used to.

This, and other bits of unusual intelligence, were disclosed today when the house appropriations committee made public its hearings on the treasury-postoffice supply bill.

Edward F. Bartelt, commissioner in the treasury's bureau of accounts, told the committee that the increased wear on folding money was due to the rapid change of ownership in these days of business expansion.

Prior to 1942 a bill had an estimated life of nine months, he said.

Now the treasury expects badly worn bills to be sent in from the banks for redemption in about seven months.

Meanwhile, the hearings also disclosed that one of the department's biggest headaches is the poppy seed, cultivated for the adornment of breakfast rolls. The trouble with the innocent-seeming poppy seed, the department finds, if that it also is a source of opium.

Because of the great demands for coinage, the three mints are operating 24 hours a day, seven days a week, in an attempt to produce the 1,600,000,000 coins used in a year. During five months of 1941 the minting of coins increased approximately 23 per cent.

The government is "in," it hopes, $185,728,000.

The figure represents the value of 42,892,000 pieces of the old large-size paper currency which has not been turned in for redemption. According to William S. Broughton, commissioner of the public debt, the bills are all over the world, some kept as souvenirs, some still in vaults and safes, and others destroyed by fire.

MEET TONIGHT

Women Voters Hold Discussion on Welfare Service.

A panel discussion on the topic, "Certain Aspects of Welfare Service in Mansfield and Richland County," will be conducted by the Mansfield League of Women Voters at 7:30 p. m. today in the Chamber of Commerce assembly room.

Operations of the Richland county juvenile court will be discussed by Miss Esther Barnett; the social security agency by Sam S. Smith, jr.; county relief by Pearl Hautzenroeder; welfare department by Mrs. Katharine McMichael; and the Humane society by Mrs. Marie Mechan.

Because the league's panel discussions have met with increasing interest, the league announced that tonight's session would be open to the public. Invitations have been extended to several other civic organizations.

DEATH CLAIMS ADARIO WOMAN

Mrs. Ida J. Bloom, 68, Succumbs After Long Illness.

ADARIO—Mrs. Ida J. Bloom, 68, native of Richland county, died at her home 2½ miles north of here Saturday evening after a long illness.

Born in Butler township, Sept. 11, 1873, Mrs. Bloom is survived only be her husband, E. C. Bloom, and a nephew, Charles Oberlin, of Butler township.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Tuesday at the Shenandoah Christian church. Rev. Stanley Johnson of the Greenwich Christian church, of which Mrs. Bloom was a member, will officiate, assisted by Rev. Turner Holt of the Shenandoah church. Burial will be in Shenandoah cemetery. The body will be at the McQuate funeral home in Shiloh until noon Tuesday.

Up and Down THE STREET

The heaviest snow of the winter and today's cold weather gave the birds a real scramble for existence for their sources of food supply were hidden. Even weed tops which usually have a few seeds clinging to them were covered with ice. Mansfielders can remember the feathered songsters by placing suet, crumbs, or grain in trees, under bushes, and in food stations until the snow is gone.

You may dislike this sudden burst of winter weather but Mayor W. J. Locke must disapprove of it even more. The mayor returned home yesterday from Florida where he spent a two-week vacation. Although Mansfield had been enjoying "spring" weather for several weeks, the week-end brought typical February wind, snow and ice. The mayor brought back a coat of tan which is the envy of workers and visitors in the municipal building.

Triumph Jean made her new record by exceeding the average of three-year-old Guernsey cows.

According to Gerry Hartman, the age of chivalry is still very much in existence in this day of four-wheeled chargers. Miss Hartman was just patting herself on the back for being able to manipulate her car so successfully on the ice and snow yesterday, when she got stuck on a little hill in town and started to slide sideways. The driver of an auto behind her honked for her to pull over and let him pass, which she did by backing partly down the hill. Only then did she discover that the man behind her was operating a city truck spreading salt on the streets. The driver thanked her and advised her to back a little farther onto the salted part and then follow him as he paved the way, with salt.

NAMED ON BOARD

Mansfielder Elected By Union; Convention Booked For City.

Desmond Walker, 475 North Mulberry street, was named to the executive board of District No. 1 council of the United Rubber Workers of America, at a council meeting held yesterday in Akron, shortly after Charles Carney of Youngstown was chosen president by the 119 official delegates present.

Mansfield was chosen as the summer convention city, with arrangements being made to hold the meeting here July 25-26.

Roy Waxler, 19 Flint street, and Walker were the only two local delegates to the Akron convention, which included representatives from five states included in District No. 1.

Walker said that he expected about 125 delegates to the Mansfield convention in July, and about 75 visitors, adding that the district membership included 54 local unions and one-half the membership of the international union.

Spending Reaches Average of $1,300,000,000 a Day In First Month.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Congress neared the end of its first month's work on President Roosevelt's $56,000,000,000 war budget today with every indication that enacted appropriations and authorizations would reach $39,000,000,000 before the week was out.

This tremendous total—averaging more than $1,300,000,000 daily—would represent congressional approval within 30 days of an amount equal to nearly three-fourths of the figure fixed by the president in his outline of war expenditures.

Yet despite its record of activity, which includes completing important war powers and price control legislation as well as appropriations, congress appeared to be in for a long and arduous session.

"There is no chance for any vacation or holiday," warned Senator Hill (D-Ala.), the Democratic whip. "Congress must be on the alert to act with speed on whatever comes along."

The senate arranged to take up today a $26,495,265,474 naval supply bill, carrying funds for beginning immediate construction of a large share of 60,000 planes and other equipment which the president has urged for this year.

Sponsors predicted the record-breaking measure would be given a final congressional okay speedily. As reported by the senate appropriations committee Saturday it was more than twice as large as the $12,555,872,474 supplemental money bill for the army passed last week and the total of the two is $39,051,137,948.

Previously the house had voted $19,977,965,474 in direct appropriations and contract authority for the navy, but the senate committee added in excess of $6,000,000,000, largely for additional planes.

With $8,000,000,000 to be provided for new ships, Senator Nye (R-N.D.), an appropriations committee member, said he hoped a large number of small, fast vessels would be built.

Besides the $16,000,000,000 to be divided equally between planes and ships, the measure would provide $5,000,000,000 for maintenance and operations of the existing fleet on a war footing, as well as minor items for bases, guns, uniforms, pay and other expenses.

The house, meanwhile, concerned itself with a billion dollar appropriations bill for the treasury and postoffice departments. Leaders planned to seek action Tuesday on a measure which would authorize a woman's army auxiliary corps, to be filled with volunteers.

Urges Ohio Drug Stores Be Named Defense Centers

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—The corner drug store soon may pass its quick lunch trade on to a back counter and once again take on as its principal job the business of dispensing drugs.

Ohio's 5,500 pharmacists, through the Ohio State Pharmaceutical association, have offered to turn the 3,000 drug stores within the state into centers of civilian protection—just in case of enemy attack, sabotage or widespread disaster.

Victor L. Keyes, executive secretary of the Pharmaceutical association, today notified Gov. John W. Bricker and the state defense council that Ohio druggists want to make their stores "auxiliary aid stations" where first aid, emergency drugs and dressings can be administered to injured civilians.

He suggested drug store delivery trucks could be used as emergency ambulances, that store telephones and radios be used in air raid warning systems and that druggists because of their familiarity with drugs administer first aid and handle stores of emergency medical supplies.

RIDERS DELAYED

Commuters Inconvenienced By Jurisdictional Fight.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Some 12,000 to 15,000 commuters who customarily come into Chicago by way of the North Shore Electric lines from the northern suburban faced delays, big jams at ticket windows and other inconveniences today because of a jurisdictional labor dispute.

The Amalgamated Street Railway and Motor Coach Employes Union, which represents about 5,000 workers on Chicago's elevated lines, charged that the powerful Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and other railway unions were raiding the ranks of the Amalgamated.

In retaliation, Amalgamated workers refused to man the switches which bring the North Shore trains onto the elevated tracks on which they normally proceed to downtown Chicago.

RENEWED NAVY DRIVE ON JAP ISLANDS SEEN

Fleet Uses Surprise Tactics In Smashing Attack on Six Enemy Bases.

of the Gilbert-Marshall attack said that United States aircraft carriers, cruisers and destroyers made up the raiding force and claimed that 11 American planes were shot down. The Washington communique already had acknowledged that many planes were lost.

The Japanese belittled the results of the attack, declaring that the only damage suffered was to a small Japanese auxiliary vessel, and claimed the firing of a U. S. cruiser and damage to other ships. Washington admitted minor damage to only two American ships from near misses of Japanese bombers.

In the Netherlands East Indies theater, the Dutch command concluded from unconfirmed reports that the Japanese had occupied Pontianak, main city on the west coast of Dutch Borneo—a claim already made by the Japanese. There was little news from other Dutch sectors.

That the Pacific fleet might have been stalking bigger game than it bagged on the islands attacked in the first such offensive today since Pearl Harbor was evidenced in the navy's communique, which noted that no large enemy combat vessels were found.

Believed to have recovered a good measure of its striking power lost by Japanese treachery against Pearl Harbor, the fleet blasted five bases in the Marshalls and one in the Gilbert group, with shells and bombs unleashed by surface and air units.

In fierce fighting, the Americans sank or severely damaged many Japanese fleet auxiliaries, shelled and bombed vital shore installations and destroyed numerous enemy planes.

The foray, it was officially reported, cost the United States 11 missing planes, two surface vessels slightly damaged and light personnel losses.

A number of possibilities were opened by the attack on the island groups midway between Hawaii and Australia.

It was noted in Washington that the action was an offensive deed on a large scale—the very thing the Japanese had sought to prevent by their Pearl Harbor attack so they could range far and wide in the Pacific without fear of the United States.

There was also the possibility that the islands attacked—Jaluit, Wetje, Kwajaleim, Roi and Taroa, in the Marshall group, and Makin island in the Gilbert group—serve as headquarters for submarines operating off the Pacific coast and as starting points for attacks on American islands in the Pacific.

Thus the crippling action against them obviously would limit such activities, as well as make safer the route of convoys of reinforcements from the United States to the western and southwestern Pacific fighting zones.

The island bases flank the main American supply routes to the far Pacific and are a definite danger to such ocean highways.

Big guns of another Japanese-attacked fortress also roared during the week-end—the heavy artillery of Singapore island pounding the Japanese as they prepared assault positions on Johore state across the narrow water separating the end of the Malay peninsula from the $400,000,000 British base.

The defenders of Singapore dug in for a fight to the finish. Encouraged by a cheering message from King George VI and the news from their governor, Sir Shenton Thomas, that substantial reinforcements had arrived during the past few days.

It was expected that the Japanese would take a few days to reorganize for the attack on Singapore, but the island defenders were taking nothing for granted.

Meanwhile the Australians took new but unrevealed defense steps as their bombers once more raided the Japanese forces attempting to extend a foothold on New Britain island in the Bismarck archipelago.

An Australian communique said bombers twice attacked Japanese ships in the harbor of Rabaul, capital of New Britain.

Dutch resistance to Japanese penetration on the fabulously-rich Netherlands East Indies continued but it was announced in Melbourne that the Japanese had fought their way close to the Amboina airport on Amboina island, where they landed last Friday.

Amboina island, the site of the second most important Dutch naval base in the Netherlands archipelago, is 635 miles north of Darwin, Australia.

Chief Pleased At Navy's Performance

HONOLULU —(UP)— Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the Pacific fleet, said in a statement today that United States warships of all combat types took part in the navy's attack on the Marshall and Gilbert islands and did extensive damage with slight losses to themselves.

Attacking under a pre-arranged plan to blast important Japanese bases and ships, the fleet carried out its big scale operation successfully, Nimitz said.

"I am greatly pleased with the performance of both officers and men of all units concerned," he said, "and particularly with the vigorous action of commanders in pushing their attacks home."

Nimitz regretted that he could not at the moment disclose further details of the attack.

Long-Awaited Help Reaches Singapore

SINGAPORE — (AP) — Bolstered by the arrival of long-awaited reinforcements, the defenders of Singapore braced themselves today for a last-ditch stand against the Japanese forces massing on the north shore of Jahore strait for an all-out assault against this island stronghold.

The welcome news that reinforcements had arrived was disclosed by Sir Shenton Thomas, governor of Singapore, in a broadcast yesterday.

"We have been told by Mr. Churchill and others that help is being sent as quickly as possible," he said. "I can tell you now that in the last few days substantial reinforcements have been received."

Council To Discuss Ordinance Fixing Gas Station Schedule; Fight Looming.

of the Standard Oil company, whose stations have not complied with the short schedule, said today that he believed that "the stations had not been asked to ration gas. He also recalled that a shorter work schedule in the eastern states had been abandoned after it had resulted in increased rather than decreased gasoline sales.

Beckley said that independent representatives would attend tomorrow night's council meeting. Coleman said that, although he did not believe his presence would help, that he had contacted several members of council to explain his stand. Beckley said that his committee had also contracted members of council.

Councilman George C. Kyle said that he was opposed to the new ordinance and would not support it. He claimed that "it was an effort of one group to force another to comply with an unfair schedule."

Coleman said that "the shorter schedule would prevent defense workers from getting fuel to go to and from work and would only drive them outside the city to buy their gas."

Under the terms of the proposed ordinance, persons needing gasoline during the night would have to apply at the police department for a certificate to be presented at two or three stations which would remain open for emergency service.

These emergency stations would be designated each week by Police Chief Thomas M. Bell The police chief would be asked to set up a schedule for each week in advance.

The independents have named a special committee to handle the short schedule question. Serving on the committee are Bart Haley, William Clauss, W L Beckley, E. R. Hart and Mike Folmer.

Coleman charged that the independents "were not moved so much by patriotic spirit as by business interests." He said that the shorter work schedule would allow the operators to lay off extra men who had been needed to keep the stations open on a longer schedule.

"Most stations made a great deal of their money not by selling gasoline," said Coleman, "but by selling tires and other auto accessories Rationing has hit their supply of these materials and they want to cut costs by laying off additional employes."

Beckley, speaking for the independents, said the "Standard Oil isn't going to run the city" and added that the independent operators are observing the shorter schedule in the interests of national defense.

war which began April 9, 1940, when German armies invaded Norway with the fifth-columnist help of the Quislingites.

(In London the government of King Haakon repudiated the appointment of Quisling and all his acts, calling the whole affair "attempted fraud which will not deceive the Norwegian people.")

The setting up of the puppet government was regarded in Stockholm as little more than a gesture made with little hope of persuading recalcitrant Norway to submit to the German yoke Evidence of this was seen in Terhoven's announcement that the German occupational forces will remain in control of all Norwegian communications and will continue to direct the police and civil adminstration.

Whether there were any demonstrations against the elevation of Quisling was not known here immediately, but it was pointed out that news of disturbances do not usually leak out for several days, and then only by announcement that executions and other repressive measures have been ordered in reprisal.

Regardless of its effect on Norway, the formation of the new Quisling government was regarded with some concern in Stockholm, for Sweden's efforts to maintain neutrality — between warring Finland on one side and German controlled Norway on the other—have become increasingly difficult.

Quisling was reported to have warned, in his speech accepting the post of prime minister, that Sweden "must mend her methods."

mastered. The enemy troops employed in this desperate venture were his best. They were shock units specially trained and selected.

"They have now been entirely destroyed. They resisted with the courage which is characteristic of Japanese troops but at the end were glad to surrender. They are being treated with the respect and consideration which their gallantry so well permits.

Two Japanese divisions, the 16th and 65th were specifically identified by the war department and constituted what appeared to be the largest force yet hurled at one time against the American and Filipino defenders.

On the east coast, the war department said that the 142nd Japanese infantry regiment, a component of the 65th division, led the frontal attack while the 141st and 122nd regiments vainly attempted an envelopment.

Earlier, the war department had revealed that Gen. MacArthur's gallant men had discovered and smashed a Japanese attempt to capture Corregidor fortress in Manila bay with a great assault.

In an apparent effort to wipe out the central Philippine stronghold in one terrible blow the enemy had concentrated invasion vessels, and presumably troops, at the village of Ternate about 25 miles south of Manila, but within range of Corregidor's guns.

Suddenly the guns of the American fortifications system began to pour tons of shells into the enemy concentration. "The surprise was complete and the force and its equipment was destroyed," the war department reported.

Crushing of this force was considered a great strategic victory for MacArthur. Corregidor and its fortifications guard the rear of the Batan peninsula where MacArthur's main army is drawn up and where several strong enemy thrusts were repelled over the week-end.

The Japanese plan, as understood here, was predicated on the theory that by reducing Corregidor resistance in the Philippines could be brought quickly to an end.

Life-long resident of Ashland county, Mrs. Henney lived with the McKinleys. She was a member of the Third Street Church of the Brethren.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs. McKinley, Mrs. Mary Casper, Mrs. Bertha Morgan, and Mrs. John Boley, all of Ashland; two sons, George and John, both of Ashland, 17 grandchildren, 14 great-grandchildren, and two great-great-grandchildren.

The women were treated in New London hospital following an accident on U. S. route 224 near Ruggles. They were Mrs. Frank Kystucki of Nova, R. D. 1, and Mrs. John B. Sheehan of Tulsa, Okla., riding in separate cars. The women received cuts and bruises.

Officers investigated a number of skidding mishaps in the Mansfield area over Sunday as cars got out of control on the icy streets and roads. Four occupants of a car escaped injury when it overturned on U. S. route 30-S near Galion Saturday night.

Injured in an accident in Galion were William Christian, 45, and his son, Forest, 16, both of Lexington, R. D. 2. They were riding in a taxi which figured in a collision with another car. Neither passenger was hurt seriously.

Two hit-skip drivers were reported in Mansfield. Police arrested one but were unable to apprehend the second. Ora Ohler of Akron, was fined $150 and costs today in municipal court after pleading guilty to a charge of failure to stop after an accident.

Ohler was arrested upon the complaint of Anna Bell Witt, 301 Bulkley avenue, who charged his truck had struck her auto on North Bowman street and that he had failed to stop. Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch suspended $100 of the fine pending Ohler's payment of damages. The Akron man was also fined $10 and costs for failure to have an operator's license.

Wendell Garner, West Dickson avenue, told police that an unidentified driver had fled after the auto he was driving had crashed into the rear of Garner's car on Dickson avenue. Police said that the driver's car was found abandoned nearby and had been reported stolen from a parking place on Dickson avenue. Owner of the recovered car is Fred H. Scott, 139 Pleasant avenue.

Two deaths occurred in Cleveland. John Stanicki, 62, a steel worker, was killed by a car and Charles Yonts died in the head-on collision of his machine with another.

Clyde M. Simmons, 31, was killed at Springfield when his machine skidded into a roadside tree.

At Columbus, Mrs. Conrad Feist, wife of a widely-known violinist, was killed by an automobile.

A hit-skip driver was blamed for the death of Clifford Burnell, 26, in Youngstown. At Canton, Mrs. Grace Bane, 56, died of injuries received earlier when struck by an automobile.

'AllOut' Or Suffer, Nelson Report To Congress Warns

WASHINGTON — (UP) — War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson warned congress today that failure to divert increasing amounts of needed materials to war production would intensify suffering and loss of life on the battlefields later.

In a report on allocation and distribution of materials, requested by the senate, Nelson promised that every effort would be made to aid "little business" if such actions did not impede war efforts.

"Until final victory is achieved all of this nation's vast resources of men, materials, and machines must be directed to the production of an ever-increasing quantity of war materials at an ever-increasing speed," he said. "There can be no compromise with the achievement of this objective. Everything else is secondary to this purpose."

Nelson predicted that control over materials is expected to move from relatively mild types to more complete allocation procedures. He told congress that a production requirements plan, under which a firm would receive a blanket allocation for three months, probably would take the place of the present system of allocating each single material.

"The limited allotment plan recognizes that the United States is faced with a crucial question in the so-called small-business problems and the closely allied special-hardship problems," he said. "But it also recognizes that these are only part of a much broader problem—what kind of an economy must we have to beat the Axis powers?"

MANSFIELD, OHIO, MONDAY, FEBRUARY 2, 1942.

Cheerful thought: When it's sub-zero in Ohio it's much colder in Russia.

It took the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor to make $56,000,000,000 sound like small change.

Comment by a man walking to work after his tires had been stolen: "These are the times that try men's soles."

Strikes Cannot Be Tolerated Now

WHILE the eyes of the nation are turned in admiration toward the valiant struggle that General MacArthur and his small force of men are making in the Philippines, and while hundreds of thousands of America's young men are being called, at the risk of their lives, to help save their country from destruction—

A strike of welders employed to do war work in Pacific northwest shipyards is slowing production of the very equipment that the nation's fighting men must have to do THEIR work!

This is another of those things called "jurisdictional" strikes, in which there is a clash of authority in labor leadership—a matter that is of no public concern and which probably disturbs no more than a few of the strikers.

But what the American people are vitally concerned in is that this strike demonstrates that, even in wartime, no governmental policy has yet been adopted which makes such a shut-down of armament production impossible. The power exists but there has been apparent hesitancy to use that power—in spite of the great need and the present disclosure that voluntary co-operation cannot be depended on in all cases.

Small wonder, after the Pearl Harbor debacle, revelations of careful safeguarding of "civil liberties" of enemy aliens engaged in subversive activities, and failure of the government to prevent strikes in war industries, that Germany and Japan gained an idea that the United States would be a "push-over" for their highly organized military machine. A wrong conclusion, to be sure, but one that will seem more plausible unless the strike of welders in the Seattle-Tacoma area is promptly ended—and further un-American acts of that kind prevented.

Tire Thieves are Traitors

STEALING had become so commonplace, under peacetime conditions, that it gradually came into acceptance as a petty offense—instead of a capital crime, as it was once regarded.

Now, however, when automobile tires represent much more than their money value, law abiding people are beginning to realize that thievery reflects a wartime weakness that must be dealt with more severely than has been customary in this country.

Habitual thieves, and those who are tempted to steal, should be made to understand that an all-out war effort leaves no time for application of mild measures toward law violators whose conduct shows them unfitted for the privilege of self government, which they have been accorded.

A definition of "traitor" is "one who betrays a confidence or trust," which places a thief in that category, especially during wartime, and punishment may well be meted out on that basis.

It may be further considered that theft of a tire would probably result in replacement with an inferior tire, and, in the event of this substitution causing a fatal accident, the thief would in reality be guilty of manslaughter.

While assurance has been given by Municipal Judge Kalbfleisch that severe penalties are in store for tire thieves, and Service-Safety Director Crafton has asked police to exercise all possible vigilance in efforts to apprehend tire thieves, it appears unlikely that theft of tires will be stopped until citizens recognize an obligation to co-operate with police in keeping on the lookout for persons tampering with cars in dark places. The idea of establishing a fund from which to offer rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of tire thieves is again offered for consideration by the automobile club, or a group of motorists organized for that purpose.

Propose 'One Money' World

NATIONALISTIC INSTINCTS rise instantly in reflex action against Secretary Morgenthau's suggestion of a post-war one-money world. But when the first shock is over and the American comes to think about it, he would probably be as willing to spend a United Nations half-dollar, quarter and dime as he now is to spend his own coins. A blue-backed United Nations bill might be just as good as the greenback of present use.

The Canadian already takes American money along with his own. His tiny five-cent pieces are being replaced by nickels enough like American nickels to work slot machines. His other coins are much like ours.

In fact, a one-money world would be easy enough to get used to for any people using the metric system, but it would be a major operation to get the Englishman to swap the sixpence for the dime, the shilling for the quarter and the pound note for its equivalent in dollar bills.

Backing the money with value in the vault would be something else again. It might take a long time in an impoverished post-war world to get such value established thoroughly enough to give general confidence. But ease of trade and disappearance of fluctuations are appealing. The vision of a common currency and coinage in a sane and peaceful world is pleasant, if not practicable.

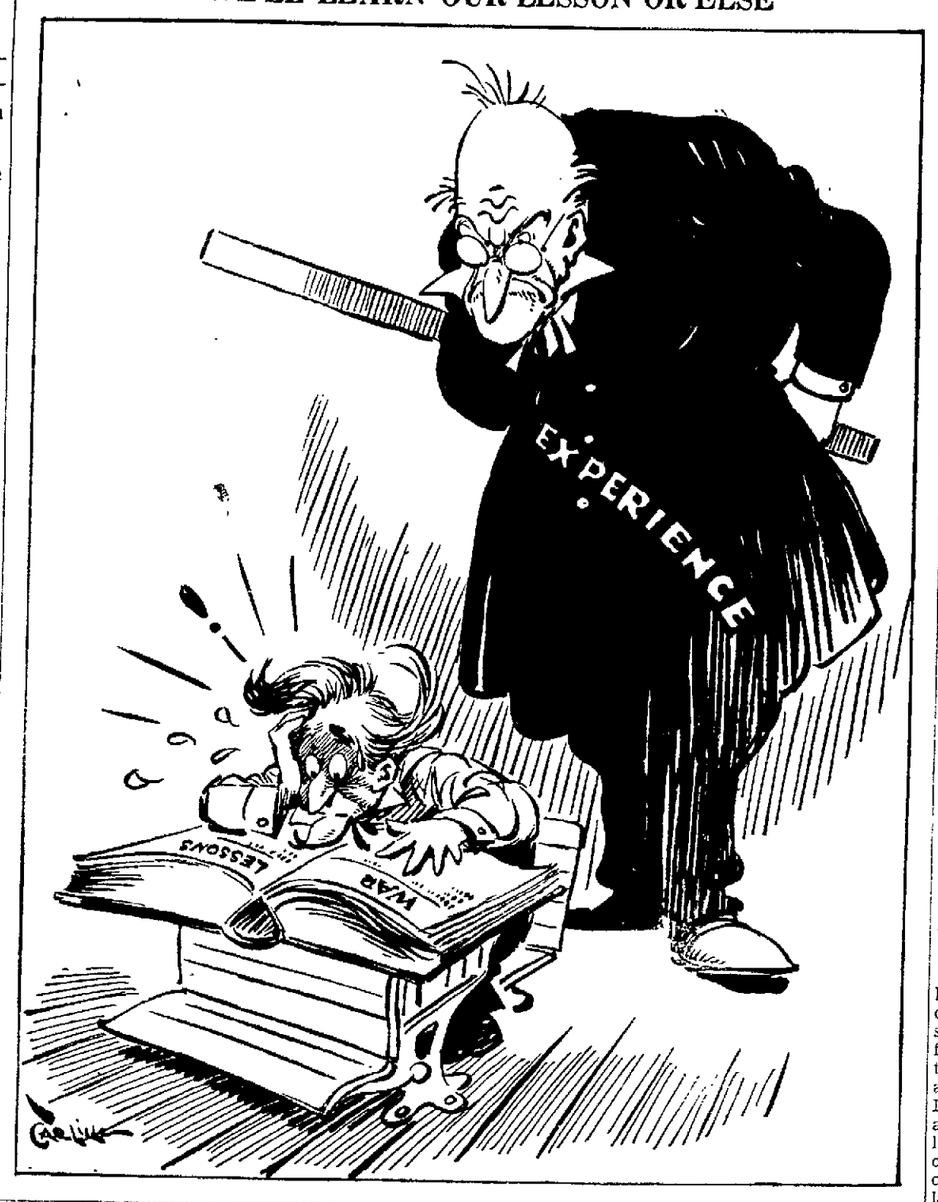
Firpo Also Started Well

UNEXPECTED Japanese successes recall the career of Luis Firpo. Followers of sporting events will remember how this huge Argentine, the so-called "wild bull of the pampas," was matched against Jack Dempsey in his prime. The experts gave him no chance; but to the amazement of all, the fight started with Firpo knocking Dempsey out of the ring.

The wild bull of the pampas got no further. Dempsey climbed back into the ring and proceeded to demolish his opponent, who never attained any further pugilistic success worth mentioning. That is why the Japanese revive memories of Luis Firpo.

"When the fighting ceases, this country must assume leadership in establishing peace and order. Isolationism will be as extinct as the volcanoes on the moon."—President Conant of Harvard university.

WE'LL LEARN OUR LESSON OR ELSE



MacArthur Was Ready In Advance

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — Not only high army officers in our war department, but visiting foreign officials, are amazed at the magnificent fight which General Douglas MacArthur is putting up in the Philippines. By all military standards he should have been crushed by Christmas, with the fortress of Corregidor allowed a couple of weeks longer.

Officers are wondering at the extraordinary facility with which the MacArthur army is taking advantage of every contour of the ground, at the obvious fact that the Americans are taking a toll in Japanese casualties actually estimated at ten Japs for every one of the combined U. S. and Filipino force.

PART of the answer can be given. It is revealed by the reading of some old letters from young officers under MacArthur, written at a time when they interested the recipients only because they were from loved ones—details of duties assigned to these young officers.

But the fact now stands out that whatever may be said in reports or otherwise about other officers in other parts of the world Douglas MacArthur was getting ready for war. He was getting ready more than a YEAR AGO. For these old letters, now re-read with military interest as distinguished from the human feeling which characterized their original reading, shows that MacArthur was having his young officers study the VERY TERRAIN on which they are now fighting.

Just when these studies — these tramps through fields, over hills, and in jungles which may have seemed such an unnecessary hardship at the time—were begun is not stated.

The writer has been privileged, in the last few days, to read several such letters. They do not say when these studies of the ground over which MacArthur thought they might have to fight began. But they sound as though these tramps and little expeditions had been going on for some time—and the letters telling this were written more than a year ago.

It is interesting to note also that there was apparently not only the study of the ground, but the actual preparation for the expected fighting. Ground was gotten ready. Warehouses were mentioned in these letters—warehouses on the very peninsula where MacArthurs is now fighting, across from Corregidor. The fact that munitions were stored there was mentioned, in several of the letters, though of course with no detail as to what sort of munitions.

THAT is the explanation of why MacArthur has been able to fire shells from his artillery at the Japs long after every one around the war department had thought he would have run out of ammunition!

MacArthur was as READY as he could possibly get.

Of interest too is the fact that Admiral Hart, naval commander in the Philippines, was not caught off base by the Jap attack. It is worth noting that everyone who knows about the situation in the Philippines a year ago says that there was no JEALOUSY between the army and navy commanders, no such lack of co-operation as was pointed out in the Roberts report about Oahu.

Hats off to MacArthur and Hart!

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Feb. 2, 1922.

Groundhog saw his shadow and six weeks more of winter was confidently predicted.

Birthday party was given for six-year-old Mary Ione Casad at her home on Benton street.

Chauncey Gates, who was taking a course in chiropractic at Pittsburgh, was home on a vacation.

Aultman and Taylor company, which had been running light for several months, was taking on more men.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Edward McCambridge, East Fourth street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Bissman were called to Washington, D. C., by the illness of their daughter, Louise, student at National Park seminary.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Tuesday, Feb. 2, 1937.

County health department installed a chlorinator in Bellville to purify the village's water supply.

O. P. S. officials proposed replacing all trolley cars in the city with buses.

Valuation of construction work during month of January was set at $19,000.

Mrs. Anastasia Nail and daughter, Miss Florence Nail, returned home from a six-weeks vacation in Los Angeles, Calif.

Son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Rex Dean, 638 Arlington avenue.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Signed on the 2nd of February, 1848, was the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo which concluded the war between Mexico and the United States. By it, Mexico acknowledged our title to Texas, New Mexico and Upper California and in return we paid the Mexican government $15,000,000 and assumed claims of our citizens against that government for $3,250,000 more.

Health and Diet

Nation's Health Can Be Bettered.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I HAVE a suggestion, in fact something of a program for the medical departments of the civilian defense committees that are being set up in all of our cities.

Just how much emergency work these committees will be called on to do remains to be seen. If we have an influenza epidemic such as we had during the last years of World War I, of course they will have plenty to do.

With movements of large masses of population, we must expect at least to be prepared for epidemics of infectious diseases, and if they come they are likely to strain the resources of our civilian hospitals and civil medical profession. The medical departments of the civilian defense committees will certainly have to assume the role of direction of all activities in such circumstances. In the, I hope remote, event of air raids they will assume even more rigid authority.

Such emergencies aside, what are the medical departments of civilian defense to do? I feel they have a great opportunity in that they can take advantage of the general spirit of community alertness and willingness to cooperate that such an emergency as this engenders, to carry out health measures on the population that cannot readily be enforced in peace time.

These measures are not experiments. They are tried and true. They are not theoretical and they are guaranteed to improve the health of America and Canada for years to come.

Lack of Enforcement.

Why, you will ask, have they not already been enforced? They have to a certain extent, but universal enforcements fall by the wayside in ordinary times because of indifference, carelessness and lack of a common spirit of cooperation.

One such thing is the enforcement of universal smallpox vaccination. Nobody knows how large an unvaccinated population we have. The health boards try to enforce it with indifferent success. Every once in a while when smallpox breaks out in a certain community, we are shocked to find that a large proportion of the population is unprotected.

Here is something that is tried and true. There is no real opposition to it except among a microscopic lunatic fringe. The army certainly believes in it. If you undertake to visit a foreign country—our good South American neighbors for instance—you find that the steamer companies and the health officers of the foreign countries believe in it.

The reason for neglect of universal enforcement in our civil population is carelessness and indifference almost entirely. Here is an opportunity to utilize the splendid surge of awakened consciousness to community obligation to rid our country of the dangers of small pox for another generation.

The same applies to universal typhoid inoculation. The health boards watch the water but nobody can tell in a miltary emergency when that supervision may have to break down. In visiting the site of a large defense production plant recently I found that there had been several cases of typhoid fever reported and that the purity of the water supply was giving concern. The only sure way of universal protection for life is by individual inoculation.

Again here is a great opportunity for tuberculosis case findings—to weed out all the suspected cases of tuberculosis in the community and segregate the carriers.

Fifty years ago tuberculosis and typhoid were the biggest killers. A hundred and fifty years ago smallpox, typhoid and tuberculosis were the biggest killers. In that short a time in man's history we have learned how to control them. Let us apply the controls universally. Wouldn't it be a wonderful thing if we could wipe out those enemies for the next few generations?

Namby-Pamby Policies Prevent Clamp-Down on Alien Enemies

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—The justice department isn't the only government agency that is namby-pambying around on clamping down on fifth columnists and enemy aliens.

The Federal Communications Commission also could do a lot more effective work than it is.

Tall, trigger-tempered FCC Chairman Lawrence Fly has done a lot of loud talking about his radio monitoring system; how alert it is in detecting enemy messages, etc., etc.

The real inside fact is that there is a lot more talk than substance to Fly's claims.

The FCC monitoring system could stand considerable improvement and enlargement. Belatedly some of this is now being done, but it should be done much faster and on a larger scale than it is.

For military reasons, details of the weaknesses of Fly's monitoring system can not be discussed. But there are plenty of them. The U. S. is vast and it is fighting a grim war on two even vaster oceans. Also, the enemy is highly skilled and cunningly resourceful. The utmost vigilance is needed to cope with him.

Fly's monitoring system has a lot of loopholes that need plugging up—fast.

Also, Fly's squeamishness about infringing on "civil liberties" could stand some wartime overhauling. It didn't come out in the published report, but the Pearl Harbor board of inquiry was informed that the FCC refused to allow Intelligence authorities to obtain copies of cable and radio messages sent by the Jap consulate in Honolulu to Tokyo.

When the consulate was raided after the sneak attack and its papers seized, numerous messages were found which when decoded contained detailed information about U. S. naval and army signals in the area and other vital military data.

"Pappy's" Sauce.

SENATOR W. Lee ("Pass the Biscuits, Pappy") O'Daniel attracted nationwide publicity when he launched his crusade for the return of prohibition with a fiery speech demanding that the sale of beer and wines at military posts be banned.

However, at the very time the ballbearing-tongued Texan was haranguing in the senate, a luncheon was being held on the other side of the Capitol which also would have been interesting news had the facts concerning it been known at the time.

The luncheon was one of the regular get-togethers of Texas house members, at which national and state problems are discussed over a tasty meal. It is customary to invite the two Texas senators, so O'Daniel and Senator Tom Connally were notified several days before. O'Daniel enthusiastically accepted, with this proviso:

"This meal is on me, boys. I bagged a deer while in Texas recently and I'll treat you all to some swell venison steak."

The offer was accepted and O'Daniel came through with the venison as promised. But just before the luncheon he phoned that he couldn't attend because he was scheduled to deliver his speech on prohibition.

His guests went ahead and enjoyed the delicacy hugely, particularly a special sauce that came with it, which had a strong, heady flavor.

The luncheoners tasted it, and then a howl of laughter shook the table.

For they had discovered that, while their host was at that moment belaboring John Barleycorn on the senate floor, the meal he was tendering them was richly seasoned with wine. In fact, as one of the chefs who helped prepare it later admitted, the sauce contained not one wine, but two—port and sherry.

Hitler's Worst Error.

PIECED together from diplomatic intelligence the story can now be told of Hitler's greatest error. It is the main reason why he has bogged down so disastrously in Russia.

Chiefly responsible was Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop, the energetic ex-champagne salesman, who has become one of Hitler's closest confidents. Uppermost in Von Ribbentrop's political philosophy is hatred of Soviet Russia, and late last November he persuaded Hitler to make one final push against Moscow. The general staff was dead against it. They contended that the capture of Moscow was not significant from a military point of view and that with deepening snow it would be difficult to get by Moscow's vast secret fortifications.

Ribbentrop, however, had already summoned a conference of the anti-Communist countries for Berlin early in December and he wanted the capture of Moscow to hold before the delegates as Salome served John the Baptist's head before King Herod.

So Hitler cast his decision with his foreign minister.

But in the effort to take Moscow, the German general staff had to remove six divisions from Rostov in the Crimea. There was no time to bring reinforcements from Germany, as Von Ribbentrop insisted upon victory before the anti-Communist meeting in Berlin.

Result was that the Russians, taking advantage of the fact that Rostov was left relatively unguarded, took this key city. Moreover, they did it just as the anti-Communists were meeting in Berlin. It created havoc among the delegates. Instead of celebrating the downfall of Moscow, some of the delegates, especially the Rumanian, Bulgarian and those along the border of Russia, signed the document with strong misgivings.

This was Hitler's first major mistake from the point of view of military tactics and one from which he has never recovered. For the Russians, taking advantage of it, have kept steadily pounding at the heels of the Nazi army.

WASHINGTON—Answering the mail orders:

C. B., South Bend, Ind.—I don't know that voluntary enlistments can be considered an index to a state's patriotism. There are many factors involved to drive voluntary enlistments up in some areas and hold them down in others. However, here are the facts: On a basis of population, North Carolina, Oregon and Wyoming, in that order, had the highest percentages of voluntary enlistments when the last tally was made around the first of the year. Numerically, New York, Pennsylvania and Texas had the greatest number of enlistments.

A. B. A., SEDALIA, Mo.—The fighting goal of 1942 is really pretty easy to remember: An army of around 3,600,000; 60,000 planes; 45,000 tanks; 20,000 anti-aircraft guns; and more than 8,000,000 tons of shipping.

L. G., Fresno, Calif.—You can NOT buy 1942 model cars, regardless of mileage. They are not considered second-hand. This applies to demonstrators.

E. J., Macomb, Ill.—The U. S. Marine Corps is the smallest branch of our fighting forces. Marine officers ordinarily are named from the ranks or from graduates of the Naval Academy at Annapolis. In the latter instance, the men apply for assignment to the Marine Corps.

* * *

K. R., Kansas City, Kan. — The Office of Civilian Defense already has instructions out to its field staff for taking care of the hard-of-hearing during air raids. However, it is probable that many localities have not yet had time to get the details to the public. Except for taking a census of the deaf or hard-of-hearing and making arrangements through local wardens for each specific case, these instructions are mostly for the afflicted themselves:

Persons who cannot hear door and telephone bells should install lights as substitutes.

Pass keys should be left with neighbors.

Two or more neighbors should be asked to be certain that the hard-of-hearing is warned when alarms are sounded. One particular caution issued is that all persons who are "sensitive" about their hearing should forget that now and cooperate with OCD program.

P. D. M., Brooklyn, N. Y.—One British flight commander who has been in the thick of it since the war started said recently: "American aircraft are never built with the idea that maybe they won't come back. They are built so strong that they absorb a frightful amount of punishment with the result that they do come back. Your many types were confusing at first, but we find now that there's a ship for every job."

W. N., Mangum, Okla. — Both airmail and parcel post sent to or from soldiers stationed outside the United States take the domestic rate. In the case of parcel post, the zone rate is the same as it would be to the port from which the parcels are transshipped. In most instances, this is either New York or San Francisco.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"Certainly I told him a lot of symptoms I never have . . . Let him earn his money!"

A Farmer's Diary

Village Blacksmith

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE village smithy still stands on the back street of many small towns, although the spreading chestnut tree will never cast its shadow over the low-built roof or shade the sooty entrance. But the blacksmith, with his dark split leather apron and open chest of tools has defied the rapid progress of the present age, and still earns his bread by the heavy labor of his muscular body.

I parked my car, recently, beside a country store, and before I entered, heard some 20 yards beyond, the familiar clang of the hammer on an anvil. That was music in my ears and brought back memories. I judged the shop would be more interesting than the store.

I trekked through an alley and came to the wide-open doors of the smithy. Just inside a team of heavy, dark gray horses stood, and farther back I was greeted by the brilliant light of the roaring forge which lit the grimy, large round face of the stocky smith as he pumped the oldtime leather bellows and stirred the spurting flames.

He had two large horse shoes and a rectangular piece of iron in the glowing forge. Small energetic sparks flew out and bursted like tiny stars. Then with long firm tongs he grasped the hottest shoe and the rod of iron and hurriedly rubbed both, molten hot, into a pot of sand. Quickly he held the shoe flat upon the anvil and carefully placed the rectangular iron half severed, deliberately on the toe, hit the welding pieces some heavy blows and twisted the rod free. He repeated the process on the other shoe. The corks seemed of sufficient length, but needed sharpening.

After the shoes were completed, I watched him bring his chest of tools near the hind legs of one horse, lift up the large flat hoof, and pare it down with his broad, crooked knife. When the shoe fit properly, he nailed it on and twisted off the protruding pointed ends of the nails between the claws of his hammer.

"Do you always have work?" I asked.

"Yes," he said. "I've been busier since November than I've ever been. For awhile it looked like my trade was losing out. A body has to meet conditions as they are, so when spring work starts, I take a forge and tools with me on a trailer and serve my customers right at their barns. Farmers who need me give me a ring the night before, and I'm out there early so they needn't lose much time. I guess so long as there's horses on the land—and riding horses in town—there'll be blacksmiths like me on the back streets."

Scotty Martin Celebrates His 111th Birthday

VISALIA, Cal — (INS) — Scotty Martin, whose baptismal name is John, celebrated his birthday recently—111 years. That is the age credited to him by Superintendent E. L. Burney of the Visalia's Old People's Home.

Burney says it was based on immigration records which he has investigated.

Scotty Martin is a native of Fifeshire, Scotland, but claims to be a full-blooded Irishman, his parents having migrated to Scotland in the early part of the nineteenth century.

He came to this country at the age of 16, lived for a time in Pennsylvania, and then came West, to Wyoming, Utah, Nevada and California. His wife died many years ago he does not remember when, and he has lost all contact with his children, he says.

Man Claims He Hasn't Slept In Ninety Years

TRENTON, N. J. — (INS) — Rip Van Winkle in reverse may well describe Al Herpin, the man who claims he has not slept in 90 years.

Herpin, who lives in a grotesque tin and wood home, declared doctors from all over the world have examined him but none could offer a solution.

His house has no bed and Herpin said he gets his rest by relaxing in a chair and reading.

He blamed his plight on an accident his mother had before he was born. Al said he promised his late mother that he would not capitalize on his affliction by appearing on freak shows or radio.

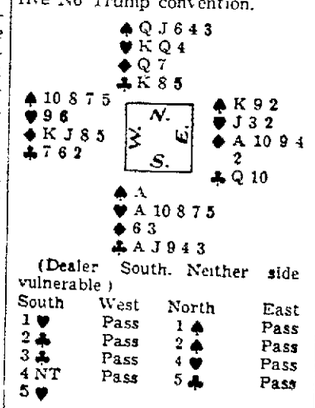
"The Authority on Authorities"

COMPETITIVE MINDED

If you analyze the chief differences between top rank players and those just below them, one thing you will find is that, as a rule, the greater their skill, the more competitive minded they are. In both their bidding and their play, they pay more attention to outwitting their opponents and worry less about being accurate in their own teamwork. That is the principal reason why many of the first-caliber stars have incorporated the Blackwood slam convention into their methods after refusing to employ the Culbertson four-five No Trump convention.



(Dealer South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♣	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♣	Pass

That was the bidding at one table of a team-of-four match-point game, North and South using the Blackwood convention. West knew from it only that South had asked North how many aces he held and North had answered that he held none. West had no idea whether South held two aces, three or four, as in that convention the 4-No Trump bid tells nothing, only asks. So he decided to lead his heart 9, to try to stop a cross-ruff.

South, after that lead, taken by his A, laid down the spade A, led to the heart K, called the spade Q and ruffed when it was covered, led to the heart Q, took dummy's spade J for a diamond discard, ruffed the spade 4, led to the club K, used the spade 6 for a toss of his other diamond, dropped the club Q with the A and ran his other clubs, making an unbid grand slam.

At the other table, the bidding was the same except that the North-South pair used the Culbertson 4-5-No Trump convention. The 4-No Trumps there proclaimed possession of either three aces or else two of them and the king of a previously bid suit. When North responded with 5-Clubs, a sign-off, and South then placed it in 5-Hearts, West felt the side lacked one ace. If North had possessed two, or one of them and the kings of all bid suits, he would have bid 5-No Trumps. If South held all four, his bid to show them would have been 5-No Trumps after his 4-No Trumps.

So West was sure in his own mind that they lacked an ace, hence his partner had one, probably in the only unbid suit, diamonds. Consequently he led the diamond 5 to the A and the returned 4 enabled him to take the K holding the declarer to his bare contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

How would you play this deal against a spade lead to make 7-Hearts by North, 7-Clubs by South and 7-No Trumps by South?

JOIN DEFENSE SAVING PLAN

Two New London Firms Adopt Purchase Plan For Employes.

NEW LONDON—As part of a nation-wide plan for the systematic purchase of defense stamps and bonds, several New London firms have announced the adoption of the plan by their employes.

The plan adopted is one by which a portion of each employe's paycheck is taken in defense stamps or bonds. The C. E. Ward company, and the Rotary Printing company, the two major industries of this village, both have adopted the plan, reporting a high percentage of their employes are now participating.

Rodney Ward, chairman of the work in this territory, said many smaller firms are preparing to fall in line, and he is confident that New London will be among the leaders in a very short time.

Payroll allotment plans, according to the accepted standard, are voluntary, with each person investing what he or she desires. By the nation-wide adoption of plans similar to that adopted here, it is hoped that it will not be necessary for the government to require compulsory purchases.

It is hoped that everyone employing one or more persons will ask their employes to accept part of his or her pay in defense stamps or bonds, Ward added.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY HELD IN GROTTO HALL

Order of Rainbow for Girls Has Installation of Officers Saturday Evening; Program Also Presented.

AN IMPRESSIVE Order of Rainbow for Girls' rose ceremony started at 7 p. m. Saturday in the Grotto hall. Marilee Sword, retiring Worthy Advisor, introduced the following guests: Mrs. Ethel Rain, present Worthy Matron, O. E. S.; E. Ray Jenkins, Acting High Priest of the Mansfield Chapter, R. A. M.; Miss Pearl Wierman, Worthy Matron of O. E. S. when Rainbow was organized; members of the Advisory board; 14 DeMolay boys; Harry J. Dotson, Honorary Dad; Masons and Eastern Stars; and guests from Jeromesville and Mt. Gilead. Miss Sword presented a gift to the Honorary Dad, and then passed out roses to her former officers. Lois Ohler, Past Worthy Advisor, joined Miss Sword at the altar and together they sang "Blest Be the Tie That Binds." Between the two ceremonies, Mary McCartney sang "Open the Gates of the Temple."

Immediately afterward, Acting Marshall Dorothy Ohler invited the following installing officers to enter the assembly room: Miss Sword, installing officer; Virginia Davis and Betty Edmonstone, installing marshalls; Kathryn Lannerd, installing chaplain; Rosemary Tingley, installing recorder; Mary McCartney, installing soloist; and Mary Jane Bellore, installing pianist. Clay Crowl, father of the new advisor, installed his daughter, Marjorie. The retiring advisor installed the others: associate advisor, Marjorie Crowl; charity, Jean Buell; Hope, LaVonne Hunter; faith, Marth Friday; chaplain, Jacqueline Dailey; drill leader, Mary Jane Bender; love, Erlene Morris; religion, Peggy Morgan; nature, Dorothy Arlin, immortality; Mary Margaret Young; fidelity, Roberta Lemley; patriotism, Betty Flegal; service, Mary Roadpouch; musician, Eileen Dysart; choir director, Louise Turner; outer observer, Ilene Hoffman; confidential observer, Joan Linkhart; flag bearer, Harriet Smotherman; banner bearer, Marjorie Smotherman.

While Miss Crowl was at the altar, Mary McCartney sang "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses" and "Thou Art So Like a Flower." Mr. Crowl installed Mrs. Thelma Hartman, mother advisor; and, when she was at the altar, Virginia Davis and Betty Edmonstone sang "Only a Rose." After the meeting was turned over to the new worthy advisor, she introduced her guests from Cleveland and announced the new Honorary Dad, Max Dougherty. She presented gifts of partially filled Defense Stamp Albums to her installing officers. The various guests gave inspirational and interesting talks.

The program was closed by Miss McCartney who sang "A Perfect Day" by Bond. The next regular meeting will be at the K. of P. hall, Wednesday, Feb. 4, at 7 p. m.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)
By ADELE GARRISON

I had my cue now. The venom in Steve Redfield's voice had given it to me. If I could play upon his vanity, and his jealousy, I could deflect his anger from Mary, also the desire to wrest an abject apology from her, which I had seen in his eyes.

The name "jealousy" was not adequate, I knew, for the emotion which possessed the actor. He was not jealous of Mary as Noel was, because of a great love for her. Indeed, I doubted that he ever had felt anything stronger for her than admiration and the fleeting emotional attraction which in men of his type parodies the sacred name of love.

Colossal Vanity.

But his colossal vanity could not bear the thought that, once having attracted Mary's affections—as he had deducted from her provocative flirtation with him—he should be unable to keep her interest in him or to willingly yield it back to her husband, of all people—the man who a few hours before had caused him to betray his cowardice to Philip Veritzen's eyes, to mine and above all to Mary's.

But as the waiter came into the room, pushing the laden breakfast table before him, I saw that any maneuvers affecting intellect or emotion would have to wait until Stephen had despatched his breakfast. His is the strictly peasant attitude toward food, and his sparkling, eager eyes at sight of it showed that his palatal nerves were sending all other feelings, save his appetite, into temporary limbo.

"How good that looks, and smells!" he exclaimed.

"Yes, doesn't it!" and I managed to simulate a corresponding enthusiasm. "Please don't stand on ceremony. My small son adjures his cousin, 'Pitch in, quick, Rod, before it gets cold,' and I am passing the admonition on to you. Do you like a small cup of coffee before anything else, or would you prefer to wait until afterwards?"

I had seated my self behind the table the waiter brought in before Redfield could pull it out, and I gestured to him to pull up another chair opposite to me.

My aversion to him was fast becoming an obsession, I told myself rebukingly. I could not bear to have him near enough to me for such ordinary courtesies as seating me in a chair, and I knew that I must put my personal feelings down with an iron hand if I were to succeed in the mission my father had entrusted to me.

"I always like to begin my breakfast with a cup of coffee," Stephen said. "Don't you?"

Smiles, But Disagrees.

He flashed on me, gratis, the famous, engaging smile which had so fluttered the hearts of many women of all ages. By an effort which I was sure deserved a war medal, I managed to give him an answering smile.

"I am afraid I don't agree with you," I said. "I prefer grapefruit juice or melon first. But as I am to have no other breakfast, I'll join you now in coffee. How do you wish yours?"

"Black, with two lumps of sugar," he said, and I poured his cup, deposited two lumps of sugar in it, and passed it to him. Then I prepared my own. By the time I lifted it to my lips, Stephen had drained his cup and was attacking his melon—I use the verb literally—for though his veneer of civilization kept him from grossness, his voracity was unmistakable.

Madge In Doubt.

He said little while he was eating, and I found myself wondering just what he would take up first when his meal should be ended.

Would his vanity or his zeal for serving his gangster associates tip the scales? Would be put again his query about Jack Bickett, or would he turn the conversation again to Mary?

He finished the last of his hot rolls and honey, drank a final cup of coffee, and took several puffs at one of the especially made cigarettes which he affects. Then he said abruptly, with a distinct lessening of courtesy in his manner:

"And now, can you tell me what you meant by saying you remembered something which you had forgotten, when I asked you that question last night?"

Ruth Simmons Is Bride Of Pvt. Schmunk Sunday

Nuptial vows were exchanged by Miss Ruth Eileen Simmons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry S. Simmons, 291 Glessner avenue, and Pvt. Raymond William Schmunk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd W. Schmunk, 278 Remy avenue, Sunday afternoon. Rev. Grover E. Swoyer performed the single ring ceremony before the altar of the First English Lutheran church at 2:45 o'clock. The bride was given in marriage by her father in the presence of the immediate families and Miss Ila Mae Smith.

Wedding costume of the former Miss Simmons was a powder blue suit with navy blue and white accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias. Miss Doris Simmons, sister of the bride, served as her only attendant. She chose a light rose suit with navy blue and white accessories. Her shoulder corsage was of roses and sweetpeas. Paul Schmunk, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

Mrs. Simmons appeared at her daughter's wedding in a navy blue street-length frock with matching accessories. A powder blue dress was worn with matching accessories by Mrs. Schmunk. Mrs. Clayson Bell, organist, played nuptial music preceding and during the ceremony.

Following the ceremony the couple left for a short wedding trip. Both Private and Mrs. Schmunk were graduated from Mansfield Senior high school. Mrs. Schmunk is now employed in the office of the Ohio Brass company and will reside temporarily at the Glessner avenue address. The bridegroom is stationed temporarily at Fort Hayes, Columbus. He was formerly employed in the office of the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company and has been an active member of the Junior Association of Commerce.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

This may be a tipoff on the Cleveland Indians' plans regarding Mansfield and the Mansfield Braves, and the Ohio State league for 1942:

Cleveland — (INS) — The Cleveland Indians signed their second high school pitcher when they ordered Tom Evans, Shaw high school mound star of last season, to report in April for spring training. Roger Peckinpaugh, club general manager, said Evans would be farmed out to the Tribe's class "D" farm at Thomasville, N. C., in the North Carolina league.

In the past it has been the Cleveland custom to send its youngsters to the class farm closest home.

Last fall, you'll remember, of the nine Mansfield Braves taken by the Indians at the end of the season for promotion on to class "C" company, the boys living nearest to Charleston, W. Va., were consigned to Charleston, and those living nearest to Flint, Mich., were purchased for Flint.

There's method in this arrangement. The Indians don't want their youngsters to get homesick and quit baseball. They believe that if a boy plays close enough to the old homestead to get home once in a while, he'll be satisfied with his lot and stick. There's no reason to believe they've changed that plan.

Read 'em and weep, neighbor. All I do is throw 'em. And it's just possible you may agree I throw 'em now and then.

Now that you've had it explained to you, there's no reason for you to express surprise at this late date at the fact that the Braves were made up last season mainly of boys from Cleveland and lower Michigan. They were close enough home they could get to see the folks now and then during the rainy season.

So when Chuck Byers from Pennsylvania, Bob Ankrum from Zanesville, and Bob TeStruth from Columbus were consigned to Charleston, and Tim Mangan, of Michigan, Bill Salem, Eddie Mutryn, and Jim Coleman of Cleveland, were bought for Flint, it merely carried out the idea of drawing tight the old home ties.

Of course there were exceptions. The demands of the class "C" teams had to be considered. And Pitchers Pat Patterson from Detroit, and Freddie Wolbert of Cleveland were sent to Charleston. Seems Charleston needed pitchers.

And did you know that Bill McGrath, Indian prospect sent to the Braves last spring and released because of the league limit, and later picked up by Grover Hartley at Findlay for the entire season and sold back to Cleveland, was sent by the tribe to Charleston? Which makes nothing in the argument at hand. It's merely a matter of information.

* * *

Personally I find in the assignment of high school pitcher Tom Evans to Thomasville, North Carolina, an indication by the Indians that they're no longer interested in class "D" points as close home as Mansfield. What do you think?

Leaders Face Hard Battles

Hot Ohio Conference Race Reaches Crisis.

By FRITZ HOWELL.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The red-hot conference basketball race may cool off a bit this week, as three of the four leaders face some of their toughest competition of the hectic campaign.

Right up on top, with eight straight wins, are perched the defending champs, Mount Union's Purple Raiders. Deadlocked in second place, with six victories and no losses, are Capital, Wooster and Baldwin Wallace.

* * *

A single defeat would see any of them flying out of the title scrap, and this is the week that might produce the upsets. Just take a look at the possibilities.

Tuesday: Baldwin Wallace should be a cinch to beat Ashland, which has dropped seven straight conference tilts. But—this one's on the Ashland floor, and B. W. was able to beat the Eagles by only 45-40 in their former game—on the Berea court.

Wednesday: Capital is a top-heavy favorite to beat Denison, the Big Red having won only two of six league starts. But—this one's at Denison, and Capital was able to beat that club by only 63 to 58 at Columbus.

The big "if" however, pops up at New Concord, as the mighty Mounts invade Muskingum. A year ago, in the season's finale, an outclassed Muskingum team came from nowhere to beat Wooster, giving the crown to the Mount Unions. Now the Muskies, with three wins in five loop games, may turn the tables and knock the Purple Raiders off the top rung.

The Muskies have dropped four games to Ohio foes, but they haven't been beaten badly. They lost the four by margins of 2, 3, 4, and 6 points, so they are a threat against anyone, especially on the home hardwoods.

Wooster, the other member of the top quartet, meets Case Saturday night at Cleveland—and the Rough Riders have triumphed in only one of seven games.

Ohio Northern, loser only to Wittenberg by a single point, is very much in the title race with five victories, especially if the present leaders falter. The Polar Bears have two games coming up with unbeaten Capital giving them a chance to sweep the Lutherans out of the way, while Wooster and Mount Union meet Feb. 18—and Wooster must get by Muskingum March 3 at New Concord in what looms as the all-important finale.

In Sunday's only game, De Sales of Toledo trounced a touring Mexico City Y. M. C. A. team 59 to 31.

The Ohio teams, after comparatively little activity last week due to mid-year exams, go back into action this week with 44 contests. The slate:

Monday: Indiana at Ohio State, Wilmington at Kent, Mexico at Youngstown, Tiffin at Defiance, Wabash at Xavier, Marietta at Buffalo.

Tuesday: Bowling Green at Findlay, Otterbein at Wittenberg, Baldwin Wallace at Ashland, Cincinnati at Akron, Heidelberg at Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio Northern at Bluffton, Marietta at Niagara.

Wednesday: Capital at Denison, Kent State at Youngstown, Mount Union at Hiram, Muskingum at Ohio U.

Thursday: De Sales at Defiance, Rio Grande at Ky. Wesleyan, Fenn at Wooster, Kenyon at Otterbein.

Friday: Bowling Green at Marietta, Wittenberg at Findlay, Ashland at John Carroll, Heidelberg at Akron, Youngstown at Toledo, Ohio U. at Miami, Michigan State at Cincinnati, Oberlin at Hobart.

Saturday: Ohio State at Minnesota, Heidelberg at Kent State, Bowling Green at Capital, Denison at Otterbein, Wooster at Case, Ashland at Kenyon, Mount Union at Muskingum, John Carroll at Baldwin Wallace, Akron at Ohio Wesleyan, Ohio Northern at Wilmington, Hiram at Fenn, Bluffton at Cedarville, Ohio U. at Dayton, Toledo at Xavier, Oberlin at Hamilton.

A. B. C. STARTS WORK ON TOURNEY ALLEYS

COLUMBUS — (INS) — The American Bowling congress, the world series of the bowling world, will begin to take over the huge coliseum at the state fairgrounds Wednesday, with actual construction of the alleys to get under way Thursday.

The ABC is to open officially March 3, and 5,600 pins are to be used by the time May 11 rolls around. Columbus, as host city, has entered a total of 607 teams, including 500 booster quintets.

Indian Mound Staff Whirls

Turnover Proves That Rapid In One Year.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — The Indians' turnover in pitchers is a whirl.

From Cleveland's 1942 roster of 38 players are missing the names of 15 baseballers who reported for training a year ago, of whom 12 were hurlers. And that is counting Bob Feller only once.

* * *

This year's list brings forth 16 moundsmen, in addition to 10 infielders, nine outfielders and three catchers. Half of the pitchers are fairly new to the Indian scene.

There are six rookies among the tossers—Steve Gromek, who joined the Tribe late last summer after winning 14 and losing two with Flint in the Michigan State league; Charles Embree, whose record was 21 to 5 for Wilkes-Barre of the Eastern league; Ray Poat, 17 to 6 for Cedar Rapids in the Three-Eye league; Dewey Adkins, 6 to 6 for Wilkes-Barre; Millard Howell, 11 to 5 for Wilkes-Barre, and Marvin Center, 14 to 8 for Wilkes-Barre.

And then there are Tom Ferrick, who won eight and lost 10 for the Athletics last year in his first big league season, and the doubtful veteran, Vernon Kennedy, who won three and lost 11 for the Browns and the Nats in 1941.

The Indians may have a reliable ace in the hole, however, Mel Harder's name is missing from the roster for the first time in years, but he will report as usual with the Tribe's batterymen Feb. 23 at Clearwater, Fla.

Mel, a free agent now, will be out to see whether an operation has cured his troubles.

* * *

Familiar names on the pitching staff are those of Jim Bagby, Clint Brown, Joe Heving, Al Milnar, Harry Eisenstat, Al Smith, Chubby Dean and the returning Joe Krakauskas.

* * *

In the infield, the only certain regulars are Manager Lou Boudreau and Ken Keltner. Ray Mack and Hal Trosky are expected to be given a run by the rookies.

Three outfield regulars are back—Jeff Heath, Gerald Walker and Roy Weatherly.

The first string catching job is expected to be a battle between Rookie Jim Hegan and Otto Denning. Gene Desautels is back, and should Hegan be drafted for military service will see plenty of service.

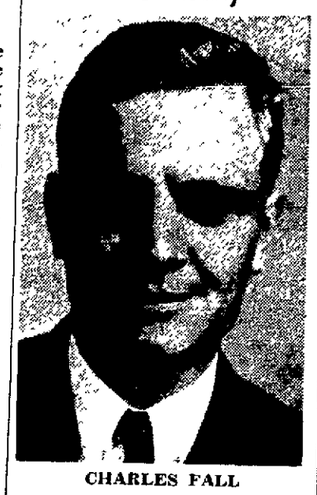
Goes To Army



CHARLES FALL

Johnny Appleseed junior high school is about to lose its second coach this season to the army. Charles Fall, who replaced Paul Cameron at the beginning of the basketball campaign, has received his notice for draft induction in the army for next Monday. He had been turned down on previous attempts to enlist in the army air corps, and in the Gene Tunney navy physical education program because of color blindness. Appleseed has no games scheduled this week, the next game being Feb. 11 with Mt. Vernon here.

Madison Meets Ashland High

Rams Play In Infantile Paralysis Benefit.

Moving this year from class B to class A tournament basketball, Madison high school Rams will get a taste of their new competition tomorrow night when they battle the Sandusky tournament champion Ashland quintet in an infantile paralysis benefit game at Ashland high school.

* * *

All proceeds of the three-game program will go to the infantile paralysis fund since the six teams involved are donating their services, as are the officials, while Ashland high school is providing the floor and taking care of all overhead expenses.

* * *

First game of the evening will be a rubber tilt between Savannah and Perrysville high school teams who are favored to tie for the Ashland league championship. Each team has won one game, and that on its opponent's floor.

The Ashland-Madison tilt comes second on the evening's entertainment which will be climaxed by a game between the fast stepping Loudonville Flxible Clippers and the Ashland Garber Printers.

The Flxies last Saturday became one of the few visiting teams to win a game at the Reformatory this season, while the Garbers are champions of the Ashland city league, and first-half title holders in this year's city league race.

Whoops! Here Comes The Panzer Division

By CHARLES E. WHITNEY

EAST ORANGE, N. J.—(AP)—To the coeds, he is Mr. Alvin Davis, instructor in aesthetic dancing and rhythmical gymnastics at Panzer college of physical education and hygiene.

But to the men of Panzer, he is Whitey Davis, head coach of football, track and gym, and honored as one of two five-sports lettermen in the history of Panzer.

The apparent incongruity of his teaching roles doesn't bother Davis, a handsome six-footer with a shock of blond hair. Says he:

* * *

"I suppose it might seem a bit silly to some people that a football coach should spend part of his time leaping and jumping about before a bunch of girls. I never gave it a thought before. It's just one of those things that a fellow accepts with his job and goes ahead and does."

Davis has been doing his job quite well, too. His football team last season defeated its chief rival, Upsala college, an East Orange neighbor, for the first time since their series began eight years ago.

Panzer won three, lost four, with a squad that never numbered more than 22 players—many of them inexperienced—and dwindled to 15 before the last game.

Davis's dancing proteges won first place in the national A.A.U. competition in New York last June, with an original composition by Davis.

Albert J. Gorton, Panzer's director of athletics, once called Davis "the most versatile athlete ever enrolled at Panzer." He starred on the baseball, soccer, basketball and gym teams and led the first football eleven, formed in 1933, his senior year.

He came to Panzer as an instructor in 1937 and the following year was named head coach of football.

Davis went to Germany in 1938, at the instigation of college authorities, and studied rhythmical gymnastics at schools in Hanover and Munich. He regards this type of physical education as a vast improvement over the Swedish-style training.

* * *

"The old 1-2-3-4 exercises, with short, jerky motions, are fading out," he said. "We try now to bring all the muscles into play with free swinging movements."

* * *

Aesthetic dancing at Panzer is reserved for the girls. For the boys there are tap-dancing classes.

GREENBERG RETURNS TO ARMY SERVICE

NEW YORK — (INS) — Hank Greenberg, slugging first baseman is back in the army, it was revealed today.

He is attached to a reception center company at Fort Dix, N. J., as a sergeant.

The former Detroit Tiger reenlisted Friday and obtained a 48-hour pass to wind up his affairs in New York and attend the baseball writers banquet.

Urges Wartime Baseball Plan

McPhail Suggests Game With Service Team.

NEW YORK—(AP)—A wartime program for baseball, involving an all-star game with a service team and partial payment of players in defense bonds, was proposed for the major leagues today by red-headed Larry MacPhail, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The fiery, imaginative boss of the National league champions outlined an all-out emergency effort for the diamond sport last night at the 19th annual dinner of the New York baseball writers and said he expected the National and American leagues to consider the subject at their meetings today.

MacPhail, a captain in the first World war and one of a small group that attempted to kidnap the kaiser after the armistice, was allotted a few minutes on an extensive speaking program at the writers' affair and it was midnight before he got his chance to tell the assemblage of a thousand persons what he thought baseball should contribute to the war program.

His suggestions fell into four groups:

1. Move this year's all-star game from little Ebbets field to the spacious Polo grounds and let the winner face an all-star service team in some midwestern city.

2. Let everyone in organized baseball, including the players, accept a percentage of his salary in defense bonds.

3. Set aside part of every admission to buy a bomber, which he suggested might appropriately be named Kenesaw Mountain Landis.

4. Make use of every open date before and during the season for major league clubs to play service teams at army or navy camps.

MacPhail made clear that he was offering these suggestions solely on his own responsibility, but said he already had received the approval of President Horace Stoneham of the New York Giants.

The writers presented plaques to three outstanding players—Joe DiMaggio, Mel Ott and Hank Greenberg.

Stars With Rens

HILLERY BROWN

Hillery "Cooney" Brown, six foot, two inch guard from Chicago, is the "ball mover" of the Renaissance basketball team which meet the original House of David quintet at senior high school gym Wednesday night at 8 o'clock.

* * *

Rens Battle David Quint

Famous Colored Cagers Meet Bearded Aces.

Rallong along on their annual tour of the country, the Renaissance Big Five, greatest attraction in basketball, featuring the top-ranking colored stars of the game, will appear in Mansfield Wednesday night against the Original House of David team.

* * *

Booking of the game here brings local fans an opportunity to see an aggregation of court performers who are truly the most masterly of ball-handling wizards, and promises to provide a high spot in the local court season.

* * *

The Rens, as they are familiarly known, have played in every large city and virtually every small town during the past eighteen years of the team's existence, meeting all comers from coast to coast, and they never fail to display a sensational brand of basketball.

Illinois Leads Big Ten Race

CHICAGO—(AP)—The leader in the Big Ten basketball race in Illinois. Practically out of the running are Michigan and Chicago. But among the other seven teams you can take your pick for the quintet likely to cause the most trouble before the campaign closes.

From a percentage point of view Minnesota is second; Wisconsin and Indiana are tied for third. In a quadruple deadlock just a jump behind are Ohio State, Northwestern, Iowa and Purdue.

But from the standpoint of defeats all except Ohio State are in the same category with three apiece. The Buckeyes have lost four.

Illinois needs only to win six of its remaining nine games to be assured of a tie for the title.

Michigan and Ohio State did their best to complicate the standings by their upset victories Saturday night over Minnesota and Purdue. The Wolverines spilled the Gophers, 34-22, and the Buckeyes stood off Purdue 46-40.

Indiana beat Chicago as usual, 63-34.

Tonight's meager bill of fare sent Chicago to Iowa and Indiana to Ohio State.

Barons Gain On Hershey Icers

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Although picking up three of a possible four points over the week-end by gaining a 2-2 overtime tie with the Capitals at Indianapolis last night after defeating the Buffalo Bisons, 3-0, Saturday, the Cleveland Barons today were still behind Hershey in the fight for the American league hockey lead.

* * *

Winning over Washington and Buffalo, the Bears boosted their point total to 55 and their lead over Cleveland to two games.

* * *

The Barons are to meet the New Haven Eagles in their next start, here Saturday.

Relief At Last For Your Cough

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Here's a suggestion for the big league bosses to consider at their meetings today and tomorrow . . . George Carens of the Boston Traveler proposes that one day in July should be set aside at each park for an infantile paralysis fund benefit . . . It would be a fair enough acknowledgment of President Roosevelt's endorsement of baseball . . . We heartily second the motion but doubt that it will come up . . . If the two leagues finish today's meetings on schedule it will be a triumph for the guys who keep the arguments on the straight and narrow path . . . From what we hear, they could keep going all day on the night-twilight game issue and all the red ears won't be due to the ribbing from the baseball writers' last night . . . A good compromise might be to trade Clark Griffith unlimited night games for guaranteed hotel accommodations in Washington.

Dawson Wins Crosby Cup

Amateur Carries on To Tournament Title.

By ROBERT MYERS

RANCHO SANTA FE, Cal—(AP)—The veteran Hollywood amateur, Johnny Dawson, not only held the Bing Crosby golf championship today but his 66-67—133 was the lowest score ever registered in the tournament.

Playing in spectacular fashion the former Chicagoan completed the 36-hole even 11 strokes under par and closed California's winter tournament trail in a blaze of glory. The touring shotmakers today were heading for another major event, the Western Open at Phoenix, Ariz.

* * *

Leaving the powerful professional troupe scrambling in the rear, Dawson was three strokes better than a pair of dark horse candidates, slender Lloyd Mangrum, Monterey Park, Cal., and Leland Gibson of Kansas City, who crashed the select group for the first time.

The pre-tournament favorites, Benny Hogan and Sam Snead, finished down the list, Hogan with a 71-71—142 and Snead, four times winner of the tourney, with an amazing 77-66—143. Hogan had no cause to grieve, however. He won the rich $10,000 Los Angeles Open, the $5,000 San Francisco Open and was runner-up in the Oakland Open.

Dawson's score surpassed the 135 set by Porky Oliver in 1940. It was registered before 5,000, largest crowd in the tournament's history. Charity, including the crippled children fund, realized approximately $8,000 from the event.

Mangrum and Gibson finished first, and it looked like a playoff today for the championship. But Dawson went out in 35, one under and needing a 35 to tie the two, proceeded to knock four off par for 32 coming home and that was the finish.

CHAPTER XXIII

The artist hesitated, but Linda's expression was one of such abject pleading that Diane could not refuse.

"I have a feeling this isn't right," she said, "but—I promise, Linda never to tell anyone what you told me here today."

Suddenly Linda kissed Diane's cheek. "Thank you. I'm sure I can depend on you." She moved to the door, then paused. "Diane—no matter what happens, or how strange my actions may seem, please trust me."

* * *

Diane was bewildered. Linda had seemed sad and dejected. Now she was crisp and sure. Her face was devoid of emotion, save for an intent expression in her eyes.

Hesitantly, Diane nodded. "I trust you," she said.

Entering her own apartment, Linda went immediately to the telephone and grimly dialed a familiar number, a number she had expected never to call again. The sound of the bell echoed in her ears, and then Greg Hollister's familiar, masculine voice reached her.

"Greg, darling!" Linda's voice was sweet and soft, caressing his name while tears coursed down her cheeks.

"Why, Linda, this is a surprise!" Greg made no pretense of hiding his pleasure. He had been sitting alone in his apartment, staring at a picture of Steve and his wife snipped from a newspaper, and wishing savagely he had not made such a mess of things.

Now that Linda was the wife of a popular and successful novelist, she symbolized in Greg's eyes all the qualities he most admired in a woman — glamour, beauty, wealth and position.

The fact that she was already married, and, apparently happy, did not enter into Greg's scheme of things. He had expected to win her as easily as he had the first time; instead she had made him almost ashamed of his ill treatment of her. Now, hearing her voice, his voice quickened.

"I'm afraid you've been neglecting me," she reproached him.

"I called you several times," Greg protested. "Your maid always said you were out."

Those had been Linda's instructions.

"I've been away," she murmured softly. "After all, Greg, you're my only real friend in Chicago. I shouldn't like to think you'd forgotten me." Linda was sick with shame at her own actions. How could she go on with this farce, when her heart was crying out to Steve for understanding? Then she remembered Steve lunching with Brenda Coleman, and steeled herself against weakening.

"But I haven't forgotten," Greg objected anxiously. "If you'd only let me take you to dinner this evening—"

Could this be Greg, this humble, pleading man whom Linda had thought so indifferent, so audacious?

"Why Greg, how perfectly sweet of you to ask me—and Steve out of town—"

"May I call for you around seven?"

"I—I'm afraid that wouldn't be wise," Linda said ruefully. "You see, the servants might talk. Couldn't I meet you somewhere?"

"Of course." Greg had a fear of unfavorable comment. He named the place and time, and Linda replaced the telephone on its cradle with a sinking heart. There! It was done, and there was no undoing now. Soon everyone would know that Linda and Greg were seeing each other. Then Steve could have his divorce and Brenda would be his once more. Linda dismissed Jerry Coleman's statement that he would never free Brenda. Knowing the blond beauty, Linda was sure Brenda could have anything she made up her mind to possess.

Linda's face was white and drawn, her eyes anguished as she turned slowly from the telephone.

Then she stood stiffly, staring into the hard, unrelenting face of Steve Baradon. One glance assured her that the conversation with Greg had been overheard, and Linda was suddenly glad. She wanted to hurt him for breaking her heart.

"Well," Linda said pertly, through sheer force of will. "Welcome home, Steve."

Following Linda's insolent acceptance of his return, Steve's eyes glowed angrily.

"To whom were you talking on the telephone?" he demanded.

"Really, Steve. That should be fairly obvious."

"Since when have you been in the habit of making engagements with other men in my home?" Steve was white with anger. Scarcely knowing what he said, he raged on until Linda cried out:

"Don't you think you're carrying the irate husband angle a trifle too far? As I recall, our marriage was purely a business agreement and our lives were to be our own. I—I haven't asked you any questions about Brenda Coleman although I know you've been seeing her, and now you shan't interfere in my affairs."

"Seeing Brenda?" He was puzzled.

"I saw you today, having luncheon together when you were supposed to be in New York." Linda suddenly wished that she could recall her words. Better that Steve wouldn't think she was jealous.

"I can explain that," Steve said easily. "I got a long-distance call, telling me the conference had been postponed. I called the station, but they said your train was already in, and I just happened to run into Brenda on the street, so—"

"I'm really not interested," Linda snapped.

Steve stared after her retreating figure until Linda had vanished into her bedroom, and the door slamming in his face was apparently the cue for him to sink wearily into a chair, his face buried in hands that trembled.

In the seclusion of her room, Linda cried heartbrokenly into her pillow. What if Steve had been telling the truth? But no. It was too fantastic. Too glib an explanation. There had been tenderness, gentleness in his face as he lunched with Brenda in that secluded spot.

Emerging later, Linda found her husband seated at the desk, engrossed in work. She said gently:

"I'm sorry, Steve. I didn't mean all the nasty things I said."

For a moment he looked at her, seeing the shining evening gown topped by a silver fox jacket, then his eyes moved slowly upward to her face and Linda was taken back by the cold indifference stamped on his features. Any warmth and understanding his eyes might once have held was gone now, Linda knew with certainty that he would never again see her as she really was, but as the woman she pretended to be.

"It's almost over—the adventure," she whispered to herself, steeling her nerves for another attack of bitter words. Instead, Steve's voice was overly polite. He seemed to be talking to a stranger.

"There's no apology needed," he assured her. "I understand your position, and you should be happy to know that your—your bondage ends in a few more month three to be exact. Then you will be free to choose your own course."

"Bondage? Freedom?"

"Of course. Our contract called for twelve months of marriage. At the end of that time—"

"Steve," she broke in, casting her pride to the winds in one last attempt to make him understand. "I want to tell you that I—"

The telephone's shrill ring interrupted her. Automatically Linda lifted the receiver to her ear, with Steve looking at her, Linda's expression changed from one of pleading to hardness.

"Is Stevie there?" a familiar voice was saying.

Linda handed him the telephone. She turned and left the room; left the apartment; left unsaid the things which might have cleared away all doubt and misunderstanding, and paved the way to marital happiness for Linda and Steve.

Linda awakened the next morning with a feeling of depression. Her heart was heavy and she tried desperately to forget all that had happened the night before. But the remembrance of Steve's bitter words could not be cast aside. They remained, a wound in her heart.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, Feb. 3.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

An exceptionally lively, progressive and enterprising day, with all things moving at high tempo and into new grooves of initiative and achievement. It is a time to push propositions of magnitude and audacity, with heightened energies, resourcefulness, determination, courage and power. There is, however, a present danger of overdoing or too strenuous or aggressive action, with tendencies to overspend, to excess optimism and enthusiasm.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of high pressure activities, with all things moving into bold and adventurous grooves of achievement. New projects of magnitude are under fine spur for constructive effort, with initiative and enterprise keyed to advanced and original objectives, with power, courage, determination and virility. However, there may be a tendency to extravagance, prodigality and overdoing.

A child born on this day will have great executive, constructive and productive forces and faculties, with much virility, courage and enterprise.

THEATERS

Lively Comedy.

Starring the New York actor, Monty Woolley, in the title role, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," showing at the Ohio, depicts what happens in a midwestern Ohio household when a visiting literary celebrity and wit is forced to remain in the house for several weeks after breaking his leg. He turns life topsy-turvy by ordering the family to remain upstairs while he remains as dictator on the first floor surrounded by a gallery of playwrights, stage and screen stars. Bette Davis and Richard Travis furnish the romantic moments and Ann Sheridan plays a theater glamour girl. Jimmy Durante and Billie Burke are also cast.

Appealing Story.

Shirley Temple appears with Herbert Marshall, Laraine Day and Gail Patrick in a moving story of a lonely young girl in the current Madison attraction, "Kathleen." As the daughter of a wealthy father, too absorbed in his own interests to devote any time to his child Shirley portrays a young girl who lives in a land of make-believe. An attractive young psychologist, played by Miss Day, solves the child's problem and brings about an understanding with her parent. "Tarzan's Secret Treasure," with Johnny Weismuller and Maureen O'Sullivan is the co-feature.

Fields Farce.

W. C. Fields is starred in "Never Give a Sucker An Even Break," showing at the Ritz. Tex Ritter and his wonder horse furnish the action in "The Pioneers," the second picture.

Pioneer Theme.

The battle between the whites and the Indians at the time gold was discovered in South Dakota and Deadwood was founded is portrayed in "Badlands of Dakota," the Park attraction, in which Custer's last stand furnishes the climax. Bob Stack and Ann Rutherford are teamed for the romantic interest and the cast includes Richard Dix, Frances Farmer and Broderick Crawford. "Pardon My Stripes," a comedy treatment of the prison theme, is the second attraction. Edgar Kennedy and Sheila Ryan are starred.

SAFETY FOR ART

AUSTIN, Tex. — (U.P.) — A $3,114,143 WPA project approved for Texas, with the University of Texas as sponsoring organization, includes a statewide listing of housing and storage facilities for care of important records and museum treasures in the event of invasion or air bombing.

The principal Scottish local court is the Sheriff Court and the judge is called the Sheriff Substitute.

PART 13 TIMES

LARGO, Ind.—(U.P.)—The sorrow of parting is an old story to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tincher, separated and reconciled 12 times in less than three years of married life.

Parting for the 13th time, however, was too much. Mrs. Tincher filed suit for divorce against her husband, a laborer, charging cruel and abusive treatment.

Parts of Ichang, China, a city high above the river in dry seasons, are sometimes under water during flood stage.

MILD UPWARD TENDENCY SEEN ON STOCK MART

Westinghouse Listed Among Leaders Showing Better Market Strength.

NEW YORK—Mild advancing tendencies appeared in parts of today's stock market but many leaders remained in minus territory.

Lifted moderately in early dealings were U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, American Telephone, Pepsi-Cola, Du Pont, United Aircraft, Westinghouse, General Motors, Anaconda, Cerro De Pasco and Phelps Dodge.

Sentiment was aided to some extent by the U. S. fleet's smash at Japanese South Pacific bases and the strong defense at Corregidor but most bidders inclined to proceed carefully pending developments in the siege of Singapore.

Boardrooms scanned the survey of the Magazine "Steel" which stressed the all-out war production program of this industry.

Mills were said to be revising their order books and many contracts for non-war consumers were being cancelled because "there is no probability of their being filled for many months, if at all."

"Scrap supply," the publication added, "continues much below furnace requirements."

A Very Brave Little Girl

Little Janet, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. Johnson of London, who survived the torpedo sinking of the Canadian Ship Lady Hawkins, is shown peacefully asleep on board the rescue ship Coamo, upon arrival at San Juan, Puerto Rico. Two hundred and fifty lives were lost. Little Janet and 70 others were saved.

38 CARS, 7 TRUCKS SOLD IN SPITE OF 'FREEZING' ORDER

The government order "freezing" the sale of new cars thawed enough in Richland county last month to permit the issuing of certificates of title for 38 cars and seven trucks classed as new by Clerk of Courts Howard Wenning.

Twenty-six of the car titles were issued Jan. 2, the first business day of the month, and before Uncle Sam really got down to the business of halting the sale of cars.

It was pointed out, however, by Miss Ruth Them, deputy clerk in charge of motor vehicle titles, that dealers for a time could obtain titles for cars which were sold and delivered before the "freezing" order became effective

Dealers also could sell new model cars and trucks if the vehicles had traveled more than 1,000 miles.

Although the records showed a few cars were sold last month the "freezing" order was effective in reducing the number of sales to about one-sixth of the total for January last year when dealers disposed of 210 cars and 20 trucks.

Sales figures for December, final month before the government restrictions were clamped on dealers, listed 132 new cars and 26 trucks.

MANSFIELD NEWS IN BRIEF

Gets Relief Money—The county today received $2,078 as the state's share of county relief expenditures for December. The amount was about $200 less than the November allocation, reflecting a drop in relief costs.

Break Into School — Frank Huel, caretaker at the West Fifth street school, told police yesterday that two boys about 15 years of age had broken into the school yesterday and had stolen some change from a vending machine. Huel said he saw the boys and chased them but was unable to catch them.

Park Group to Meet—Members of the John Todd Park association will hold its regular meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p. m. at Hedges school. Plans will be made for the campaign to obtain funds for the improvement of the park and for the purchase of additional land.

Station Burglarized — A large plate glass window in a filling station at Grace street and Ashland road was broken early Sunday by burglars who took three boxes of cigars, 20 packs of cigarets and some candy bars from the station, H. W. Middleton, station manager, reported to Sheriff Frank E. Robinson.

Will Show Films—Members of Troop 14, Boy Scouts, will be shown a motion picture of the Eagle Scouts' trip to Grace Field, Quebec, at their weekly meeting today at 7.30 p. m. at St. John's Evangelical church. Floyd Dent, area scout executive, and Clarence Silcott, scout commissioner, will show the films and address the meeting.

Accepted For Enlistment — Charles Knowlton, New London R D 4, was sent to Cleveland for enlistment by the Mansfield recruiting station this morning, according to Recruiting Officer W. G. Cox Two other men, Earl E Thompson of Mt Vernon, and Charles R Stahl of Ashland were also accepted. They will leave Mansfield Wednesday.

BLOW TO AXIS

Rios, Anti-Fascist, Elected President of Chile.

SANTIAGO, Chile—(U.P.)—The election of Juan Antonio Rios, presidential candidate of the "anti-Fascist Democratic front," was regarded today as a triumph for Chile's pro-democratic forces, and observers predicted one of the first acts of his regime would be to sever all relations with the Axis powers.

Rios, a Radical party member, defeated his rightist opponent, Gen. Carlos Ibanez Del Campo, by 55,945 votes in yesterday's election — which was one of the quietest in many years. Within 60 days he will be inaugurated for a six-year term, succeeding Pedro Aguirre Cerda, who died in November.

Rios campaigned mainly on an anti-Fascist platform and his vote of 257,980 against 202,035 for Ibanez was regarded as a mandate against Germany, Italy and Japan.

Audience Shocked As Pastor Tells Of Soldier Deaths

CHICAGO —(INS)— Members of the Plymouth Congregational church in suburban Maywood mourned today the death of one of their number which was announced in a dramatic manner at the Sunday services.

When Rev. Roy W. Merrifield concluded his sermon, he said.

"Let us not sing the closing hymn today. Instead I should like to read the names of the boys of our church who are fighting for their country.

Before the name of the last, Dr. Merrifield paused. Then he went on:

"And also my son, Jacques, who was a member of this congregation. He was killed in action while guarding Clark Fild at Luzon with the Philippine tank forces on Dec. 30, according to a message which I received this morning.

"I offer this bouquet in his memory"

A woman in the congregation collapsed Others who had known the youth wept Dr. Merrifield, erect and dry-eyed, walked to the church door to say farewell to the congregation as is his custom at the end of each service.

Here's the reason we're selling slacks like sugar . . .

Because we have the sort of patterns that the young men buy on sight in fabrics that older men know wear like leather.

You'll see why when you tell us your waist measure.
